Seniors plan Toronto trip

The Romulus Senior Citizens Center is taking reservations for a Senior Citizens' trip to Toronto planned for Aug. 26, 27 and 28. The cost of the trip is $99 and it will include transportation, hotel accommodations, admission to Canada's Wonderland, among other things.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning the Romulus Senior Center at 941-0666, extension 257.

Also, all seniors who need legal aid will be able to receive it free of charge from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., Thurs., Aug. 6 at the Senior Center.

First Step gets $600 from city

First Step, an organization that offers assistance to battered spouses, will receive financial aid from the City of Romulus to the tune of $600 for the next six months.

And if city officials discover that the Livonia-Westland based group help enough local residents, the council may increase its contribution.

Acting on a motion offered by Councilman Edward Rush, council approved the funds for First Step.

According to a release presented council by Edward H. McNamara, Mayor of the City of Livonia, "since April, 1979, over 1,600 victims of domestic violence—104 from Romulus—sought help from First Step. Yet, without immediate financial assistance, this vital service to our communities will be eliminated. In order to ensure the continuation of First Step, we are asking City Council of all communities served by this organization to offer financial aid.

An art auction will be held on Saturday, August 1, in Taylor, to raise funds for the opening of an emergency shelter facility for battered women and their children. This shelter will be available to residents of Western Wayne County and Downriver and, if everything goes according to schedule, will open in the fall of 1981.

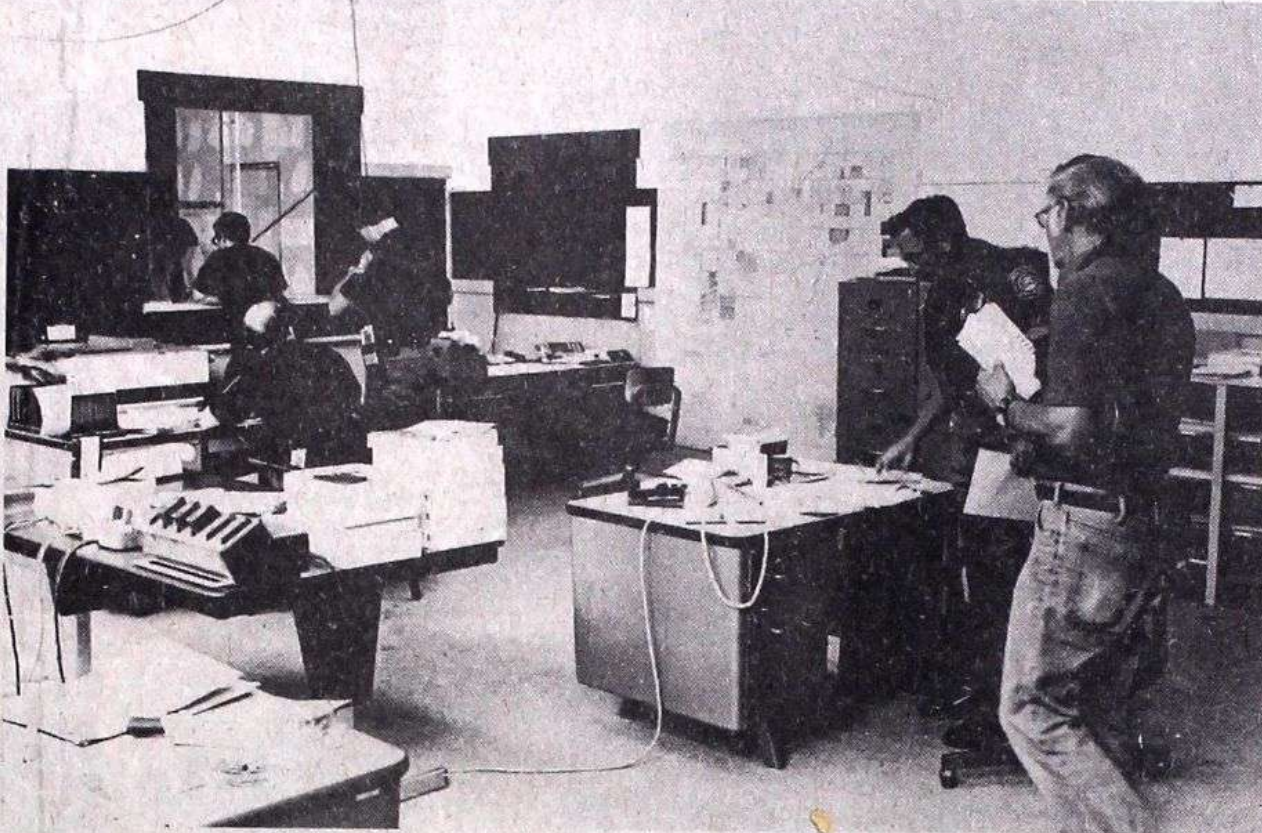

Works of art will be presented by the Oxford Art Gallery and will include original signed etchings, lithographs, serigraphs, paintings and sculptures. Artists include Salvadore Dali, Norman Rockwell, Leroy Neiman, Juan Miro and many others. The starting prices will range from $5.00 to $1,000.

Art collectors and people looking for fun and decorative works will not want to miss this outstanding show.

Center of police operations

In its infancy, the newly-created Romulus Police Department is growing in a revamped elementary school that was taken over by Police Chief Donald Flood's force. The center of operations (above) is handled from one room, the only one that contains an air conditioner, while in the photo below Lt. Robert Sullivan is viewing what he hopes will soon become his office. Chief Flood reminds citizens that the police emergency telephone number is 942-0330, and for routine telephone calls, residents are urged to use the 941-8400 number.

Of teen-age Wayne girl

Killer gets life sentence for rape, attempted murder

A 29-year-old Romulus man has been sentenced to 60 to 90 years in prison on each of two counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and life imprisonment for attempted murder in connection with the rape and assault of a 17-year-old Wayne girl earlier this year.

Found guilty before Wayne County Circuit Judge Peter B. Spivak on July 1 was Jackie Hagan Smith, a Jackson Prison parolee, who had served less than the minimum seven years of a prison sentence for the murder of his wife of six months.

According to Wayne County Sheriff's Det. John Lewis, the girl was picked up by Smith and two other companions, Dana Minkler, 24, of Canton Township, and Phillip Panik, 30, of Wayne, shortly after she left a pinball arcade near Van Born and Beech Daly roads in Dearborn Heights on Jan. 21.

The victim was taken to Sumpter Township, where she was raped repeatedly by the three men. Lewis added that the girl, who stands five feet tall and weighs 90 pounds, also was subjected to a severe beating, then taken to a wooded area near Wear and Martinsville roads, where the men slit her throat and left her to die.

Left naked in the snow, the victim regained consciousness and was able to make her way to a nearby house, where the police were contacted.

Hospitalized for her injuries, it took more than 50 stitches to close up the wound on her throat, and police officials expressed surprise that the teen survived the ordeal.

Minkler and Panik both have been sentenced to 10 to 20 years in prison for their part in the rape. However, earlier charges of attempted murder against them were dropped after they pleaded guilty to the rape charge and agreed to testify against Smith.

In sentencing Smith, Judge Spivak cited his past record as "having difficulty everywhere you have been." He added that the "the penalty fits the crime."

Construction starts on strong upturn

Construction activity in Romulus has taken a strong upturn, according to a report to the Mayor and City Council by George R. Bingham, City Engineer and Director of Building and Safety Engineering.

Bingham's report indicated that construction activity is strong, especially true of residential construction which shows six new single-family residences for the month of June as compared to a total of 10 new starts for the first five months of the year.

"These 16 residence permits for the first half of the year compare to 11 for the same period a year ago," Bingham stated.

Bingham's report also showed that seven permits were issued for commercial and industrial construction having a value of $5,562,600 which is sharply up from 1 permits for this category having a value of $3,888,600 during the same period last year.

Among the major projects scheduled for the city are the $3,578,280 industrial building planned for Harrison Road which is owned by the Taylor firm, Central Bee Distributor.

Also, the Masco Corporation is building an addition to its Metro Airport complex as the estimated cost of $99,600, while Federal-Mogul of Romulus has taken out permit to build an industrial plant on Middlebelt. The construction carries a price tag of approximately $1,249,500.

They serve as volunteers

Huron Township establishes 6-man reserve police unit

Huron Township has taken steps to beef up its existing police force by selecting six volunteers in its police reserve unit.

"The township board has authorized the police department to form a police reserve unit and also authorized the strength of that unit to 10 men," pointed out Police Chief Joseph Carney. "We swore in the first group of six officers earlier this month."

The officers include: Bill Diebold, who is the director of the police reserves, James Haney, John Osborne, Richard Roman, Rickey Rossi, and Charles Syer.

Chief Carney said that the six men are scheduled to attend classes at the Michigan Institute of Law Enforcement at Oakland Community College and will be instructed in Criminal and Traffic law; Crime Scene Investigation; and Patrol Procedures and Techniques.

The classes will be conducted during the month of July and August.

"These officers are serving on a volunteer basis and receive no wages," Chief Carney stressed. "They will at all times be assisting and working in conjunction with our regular officers."

"The officers will serve their first tours of duty at the Waltz Homecoming scheduled this month," he added.

By board action, the police chief has authorization to increase the reserve unit to 10 men.

"Obviously we are very pleased to have this additional manpower," Chief Carney added. "And I'm sure the community will be, too."

The reserve unit already has had some training in first aid, traffic control, self defense and public relations. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department, which used its road patrol to help police the area, was disbanded by the county commissioners because of lack of money. The county is $18 million in debt.

Many of the communities that the sheriff's patrol serviced have opted to create police forces or add men to the part-time forces.

Avery resigns as commissioner

City Council accepted the resignation of Wayne Avery as a member of the Romulus Planning Commission. The resignation would be effective as of August 1, 1981.

In his statement to Mayor William Oakley, Avery said "that I am resigning my position on the Romulus Planning Commission effective Aug. 1. I have enjoyed serving the community... and I believe appointing school board members to various commissions is an excellent idea, and I hope you continue to do this."

Dog-gone dog's gone

Lawrence Plank, who recently celebrated his golden wedding anniversary, loves his neighbors and doesn't mind people owning pets like dogs.

But dogs... like humans... can be a nuisance sometimes. So, a few weeks ago he asked City Council to help rid his neighborhood of a problem—a dog.

After several unsuccessful attempts to get the city to solve the problem, Lank last Tuesday appeared before Council and said "the problem is solved."

"My neighbor and I have had some disagreement about the pet, but I think everything has been resolved," Plank said. "In fact, my neighbor even came over to my golden wedding anniversary party to wish us well."

What's that about the dog-gone dog is gone? Never bet on it.

Congratulations!

'Protest meeting'

Area residents battle landfill expansion

When the Michigan Department of Natural Resources holds a public hearing on a proposed landfill, a representative of the City of Wayne will be there to log that community's objections to the development.

The Wayne City Council last week voted to have City Attorney Phil McKinney present at the July 27 meeting, to protest the development on the city's southwest borders because of the potential problems it could cause in the neighboring Louis Garfield Savage Subdivision.

Michigan Waste Systems Inc., which operates the Woodland Meadows Landfill north of the Penn Central Railroad along Hannan Road, the boundary between Canton and Wayne, is seeking approval of an expansion of the facility to 105 acres south of the tracks and adjacent to Hannan and Van Born Roads.

Michigan Waste Systems has submitted an application for licensing with the State Department of Natural Resources. According to Jim Kosteva, community planner for Canton Township, the firm also has indicated that it will seek approval to use the facility for the disposal of hazardous waste.

As Wayne officials understand the proposed development, the 105-acre site would be surrounded by a large open ditch for groundwater runoff, which Romulus Treasurer Beverly McAnally commends Lynn Cleary for a job well done after the 25-year-old music teacher at South Junior High School and her 80-member band were named "Best Musical Group" in the Fourth of July Parade through downtown Romulus. Lynn's cowboy attire fits in with the western theme of this year's celebration.

MESC launches hire welfare recipient campaign

The Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) has launched a major effort to encourage employers to hire those receiving welfare.

The program's objective is to make employers aware of the tax break available to them through the federal Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) program for hiring General Assistance (GA) recipients and to let employers know of the many qualified workers who are now relying on GA.

"We feel the economy has forced an unusually high number of qualified workers to accept welfare for the first time," S. Martin Taylor, MESC director, SAID.

"We hope that if employers learn that they can hire good employees and receive a tax break for doing so, they will investigate the program. The promotion is designed to stimulate that interest."

The campaign to promote TJTC is part of Governor Milliken's announced effort to reduce the state's GA rolls, which have grown 113,000 in March 1981. Taylor said that much of the increase results from unemployed workers exhausting their unemployment benefits and then turning to General Assistance for help.

The Departments of Labor and Social Service (DSS) and the MESC are working jointly on the GA hiring effort.

The MESC has placed employment interviewers in several DSS offices around the state to work closely with DSS staff and GA recipients to help the recipients find employment for which they are best suited.

"Employers like the program's tax credit and the lack of red tape, but they also want good workers," Taylor said. "Our job is to make sure we deliver qualified persons who, through no fault of their own, also happen to be GA recipients."

The MESC is also coordinating the TJTC information effort which includes personal letters from Governor Milliken to accountants, personnel directors and employers encouraging them to take advantage of the program.

The governor is also serving as spokesperson for the effort through a series of radio and television public service announcements.

The MESC has established a speakers' bureau to address civic and business groups that are interested in learning more about the GA-TJTC effort. A 13-minute slide tape program has been developed as part of the public presentation. The program portrays the plight of an experienced worker who is faced with the problems of living on welfare and job hunting.

Mass exodus of Huron athletes?

Boosters need $74,000 to save sports

If there hasn't been a mass exodus of New Boston Huron High "blue chip" athletes by now, there may be one as soon as they finish reading this article. The Huron School Board painted a dismal picture at its inaugural meeting recently on the prospects of salvaging a varsity sports program this fall.

Although newly-installed board members received assurances from at least two members of the community — Wayne Younglove and cross country girls' coach, Paul Teague — that the mechanism has been set in motion to raise the necessary $74,000 to support varsity sports, "it may be too late," according to some board members.

Because of a recent millage defeat, the board carried out its threat to make the necessary cutbacks to balance the school budget, as required by state law.

Among the cutbacks are the elimination of varsity sports and the "pink-slipping" of Hank Smith, athletic director.

The athletic director and the board were obligated to inform Huron Conference affiliates that Huron High had abolished fall sports and, even though monies may be raised, it may be too late to reinstate the programs.

League members may have filled their schedules with non-league games.

.... 'I don't want to see a piecemeal program, and a bunch of angry parents.'... Edward Umin

The board and booster members were to pick up the dialogue Monday night.

"We, the parents and our groups, will get you (the board) the money and you allocate it to the sport you feel we should have," said Younglove. "I have parents that are willing to work to raise the necessary money."

Umin, who has been on the other side of the fence in the past and has raised money to help keep sports alive, warned the group "that it won't be easy. I have been involved in trying to raise money for years, so I can totally appreciate some of the things you are presently going through."

"However, $10,000, is really not enough support," Umin continued.

"You'll find out how soon that money will run out, and what I don't want to see is that this school district come up with a piecemeal program."

"What we need is a total commitment and I personally want us to have a full sports program, then we won't have anybody upset," Umin added.

Younglove responded: "Are you saying you want us to come up with $74,000 by September 1?"

"No," replied Umin, "I want a program that would adhere to the state guidelines and not have a whole bunch of angry parents."

Constable believes so

Did Van Buren violate Open Meetings Act?

Van Buren Constable Cathy L. Horste has asked that the Michigan Attorney General's Office to step in and investigate what she feels "has been a flagrant violation of the Open Meetings Act" by four members of the township board.

The Township Board recently informed Constable Horste that the added clerical duties in the police department would no longer be funded.

In her letter to Frank Kelly, Attorney General, Mrs. Horste documents what she said was "the flagrant violation" and pointed out that the four trustees illegally met to decide the fate of her office.

"I sincerely feel that it is my duty as an elected representative of the people of Van Buren Township," Mrs. Horste's letter to the Attorney General office read, "and as a citizen of Van Buren Township, . . . to report these actions to you, and to call upon your office to take the necessary steps in investigation and prosecution of these acts."

In her documentation to the attorney general's office, constable Horste offers a letter dated June 17, 1981 "written to the township clerk and signed by four trustees - Chester Wojcie, Darwin Kureth, Tom Welty, and Fred Domen, advising the clerk that those four have agreed to create a new township position, and have hired a person to fill it."

Mrs. Horste continues "that a letter to me, also dated June 17, 1981, telling me that my position has been eliminated and that a young lady has been designated to fill the new-created position." She also offers "that the Van Buren Township Board of Trustees held its regular scheduled meeting on June 23, and at that time the four board members carried out their prior written agreement, and publicly created the position they had already filled. They also eliminated my position publicly at that time, although they had agreed to do that by prior arrangement."

Welty, who serves as police commissioner as well as township treasurer, said that the board didn't violate the Open Meetings Act and offered a differing viewpoint why Mrs. Horste was fired.

"She (Mrs. Horste) was let go because she was not doing her job," said Welty, "and that's all there is to it. She was not doing her typing; She was doing her own personal stuff on the township time and getting paid for it."

"And that's why we have reorganized and tried to save this township money," Welty added.

The township last month approved the hiring of a $16,447 confidential secretary for the police department, a job that Mrs. Horste was doing on a part-time basis. At the time Welty said "that the personnel changes were recommended to save township money."

The board voted in support of the move, but didn't get the backing of supervisor Pat Cullin and trustee Tim Toohey who argued that they didn't see any savings in the reorganization and felt that the new secretary, Cindy Cyriax, would be overpaid for the job.

Mrs. Cyriax has been employed as a $10,500 stenographer trainee in the clerk's department until the transition.

In the letter to Mrs. Horste and signed by Welty, dated June 17, 1981, the police commissioner wrote:

"This letter is to inform you that due to planned reorganization in the Police Department we are in need of a fulltime police secretary, your employment with the Van Buren Township Police Department will terminate on Friday, June 19, 1981. Unfortunately, the full-time Confidential Secretary position has been filled."

Kureth, a former Van Buren Township supervisor, said that he had heard "a couple of the officers remark that they had to do paperwork which they thought should have been done by the secretary."

"In my opinion, if the police commissioner and the police chief are dissatisfied with one of their subordinate's work, then they should do something about it. As a former supervisor, my feeling is that the departmental leaders should be knowledgeable about their subordinates quality of work and should and are obligated to take action when they deem necessary."

Wojcie said, "I don't see where Mrs. Horste would have that kind of idea that we had violated the Open Meetings Act. We, in no way could have had a closed meeting on that particular subject. I feel that some people are judging other people by themselves."

Wojcie went on to say "that the board is intelligent enough to realize that they were in violation of the act if they met in closed session."

Residents ask recall of trustees

Recall fever has hit two of the three school districts in the city as residents seek to oust members of the Boards of Education in the Westwood Community and the Inkster School Districts.

Inkster residents want a "clean sweep" of their school board, while three trustees are the object of the recall in Westwood.

"We've formed a committee," said General Laney, who is spearheading the drive in Inkster, to oust all seven members of the school board. The reason for the recall action is twofold — one, we believe two of the members do not reside in the school district and the board, knowing this as a fact, has installed them illegally.

"Secondly, there is a generally discontentment with the over-all performance of our board," Laney said.

Laney said that his group, "Citizens Committee for Quality Education" can verify that Stella Lewis, a board member, and Charles E. White, board president, do not reside in the school district.

Laney went on to say that White is a resident of the Taylor School District and the Stella Lewis recently married and has moved to Detroit.

"Knowing this, the present board went on to seat these two persons illegally in violation of the state law," Laney added, "therefore we want all the members of the board recalled."

The five other members of the board are: Fred D. Shockley, Marg Burge, Jas Clinton Jones, John Rucker Jr., and George V. Williams.

White said that it wasn't the first time that "this group" has attempted to recall him.

"I am definitely a resident of the Inkster School District," White said after being re-elected as board president for the second successive term. "This has been an on-going battle with a certain faction of the folks in the district."

"I don't want to get into a name-calling battle, but it comes down to the fact that I'm not a 'Yes' person and these people don't like it."

Making his point

Stressing that raising funds for high school athletics can be and is a hectic and erratic job, newly-elected Huron Board of Education president, Edward Umin, recently informed athletic boosters the varsity program would need a total commitment "and money up front" to launch the program. "We don't want a piecemeal program," Umin stressed. Huron has eliminated varsity sports because of lack of money.

To $125

Huron hikes tuition fees

Despite the objections of at least one of its members, the Huron Board of Education voted to hike the tuition rates of students not residing in the school district to $125.

With trustee Bill Manny missing the organizational meeting, trustees George Angel, Gary Tobin, Edward Umin, Larry O'Kelley, and John Pershing approved the $25 increase of tuition fees.

The one dissenting vote was cast by John Watson who felt the figure was too low.

"I feel that these students who are paying tuitions are wearing out our facilities and getting out of this school system more than they are putting in at the expense of our taxpayers," Watson said.

"We are losing, not gaining, when these students enroll here, therefore, I would like to see them carry more of a share of the load," Watson stressed. "I would feel comfortable at saying they pay $250."

Watson's colleagues disagreed.

Last year 130 students paid tuition to attend the Huron schools. This year, school officials project that the enrollment of such students may be down somewhat and place the figure at between 100 and 125.

Ready to serve Huron Township

With the Wayne County Road Patrol disbanded by the county commissioners, Huron Township took steps recently to provide additional officers for the safety and welfare of its citizens by establishing by board motion a reserve police unit. And residents had an opportunity to meet with the prospective members of the unit who are pictured above with Police Chief Joseph Carney

County to receive $6 million for block grant programs

Wayne County's 1981 share in the federal Community Development Block Grant program amounts to nearly $6 million, approved last week by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

This is the County's seventh year in the program, which organizes willing communities with less than 50,000 population and submits a collective grant request to HUD with detailed plans for distribution and expenditure of the funds in each community. Larger communities apply directly to HUD.

With 31 communities participating, the funds will support a variety of physical development projects such as street and sidewalk improvements, development of water and sewer facilities, fire protection services, senior citizen centers, and housing rehabilitation. The County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs and Management is now preparing contracts with the recipient communities for distribution during the week of July 27, said Samuel A. Turner, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners.

Other acceptable projects can include land acquisition for community use, public housing expansion, recreation programs and elimination of blighted buildings, said Turner. Mainly, the projects must principally benefit low- and moderate income persons, aid in the elimination of slums or blight, or meet some other urgent community need.

The exact amount of the grant this year, $5,932,176, brings to a total $28.5 million administered by the program since its inception in the County. All the proceeds are for projects determined after public hearings at local levels, although HUD is the final approving authority.

Basic county policy guiding the Block Grant Program is determined by an 18-member advisory council which includes three county commissioners, former Commissioner Martha G. Scott, who is now a County Civil Service Commissioner, and 14 other elected officials from the communities receiving funds. The current commissioners are William Sullivan (D-Wyandotte), Thomas Presnell (D-Westland), and Clarence R. Young (D-Ecorse).

Among the participating communities this year are:

New law corrects water rate inequities

Detroit dominates system to 73 communities

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Rep. — 38th District

EDWARD MAHALAK

There had been some obvious inequities in rates charged its municipal customers by the City of Detroit Water Department. A newly signed state law will correct some of the most serious ones.

The legislation strikes from old law language which established minimum and maximum rates which may be charged by Detroit or any other city that sells water to other municipalities. It eliminates distinctions between communities within 10 miles of the seller and more distant cities.

The new law requires that the rate charged all purchasers must be based on the actual cost of the service, as determined by the utility basis of rate-making.

Maximum and minimum rates contained in existing contract will remain in force for the life of the contracts.

The law also provides that a municipality which buys water from another city must sell it to its residents at a rate which does not exceed the actual cost of the service.

A law enacted back in 1917 authorizes municipally owned water systems to contract to provide water to other local governments. By far the largest such network of agreements is that involving the City of Detroit Water and Sewage Departments.

That system, which services 97 communities, has also been the focus of a great deal of controversy.

Some communities have complained of their rates being raised to what they consider to be unreasonably high levels, while other communities have been accused of bearing less than a fair share of the cost.

Part of the difficulty in setting fair rates arises from the tremendous complexity of working out proportional responsibility for such a huge, intricate and interconnected system; but the difficulty also arose in part from the limitations placed on rate-making by the old 1917 law.

Detroit officials believe that part of the problem has been overcome by a study conducted by a consulting firm and the development of a computer program from that study which serves to identify the actual cost of providing water to each community.

The first rates based on the study went into effect December 1, 1980, but these rates were distorted by the effects of the 1917 law.

That law set the minimum and maximum rates which a city selling water service may charge a community buying it when that community lies within 10 miles of the seller. The minimum is the same rate charged within the city doing the selling and the maximum is twice that rate.

This leaves obvious inequities. Thirty-four of Detroit's water service customers have been paying more than the actual cost of service while 10 pay less. In effect the 34 over-charged customers are subsidizing the cost of water service to the 10 undercharged communities.

The City of Detroit alone will benefit this year in the amount of $3.4 million. The other undercharged customers will pay almost $1.4 million less than their actual cost of service. Thus, the 34 over-charged customers will be paying a total of $4.8 million this fiscal year to help provide service to undercharged customers.

Now that the Detroit water system has a reliable method of equitably apportioning costs there is no reason why water service customers should not pay the actual cost of service.

When the new law becomes fully effective it will correct this inequity, as well as preventing any municipality that buys water from Detroit from overcharging its own retail customers.

Deputies get paid but no overtime

There was nothing extra in the paychecks of some 390 Wayne County Deputies Friday despite the fact that Circuit Court Judge Irwin H. Burdick ordered the County Board of Commissioners to pay their accumulated overtime by July 17.

Joseph A. Sullivan, former Circuit Court Judge hired to represent the commissioners, said the County has twenty days — from June 30 — to petition for a retrial or, if denied, an additional 20 days to appeal Burdick's decision.

The rehearing deadline, July 20, falls three days behind Burdick's order to pay some $800,000 in accumulated overtime which deputies claim is owed.

James Walsh, an associate of Sullivan's, said the County is challenging Burdick's decision through proper court-ruled procedures and does not expect anyone to raise the question of contempt of court while that decision is being disputed.

Although attorneys representing the deputies brought in a show cause order June 30th asking Judge Burdick to charge commissioners with contempt of court, the Judge merely repeated his order to the commissioners to pay up," Sullivan explained.

County Auditors were told not to include overtime payments in Friday's checks for deputies pending outcome of the County's petition for a retrial. "Even if they change their minds at the last minute," said Warren Brush, an accountant at the Sheriff's Department, "we couldn't possibly get them out Friday."

County commissioners decided to seek the rehearing — or an appeal — when it appeared much of the overtime was the result of deputies working out of position. Commissioner James Rashid, one of the more outspoken members of the board, asserted that Sheriff Lucas was working his men on 12-hour shifts and that part of the time was being spent financing the road patrol division, ordered closed down last February. Commissioners had hoped to save $5.2 million towards balancing the 1980-81 budget.

Walsh said Inspector Richard Stover of the Jail Division testified in a deposition that of the 246 deputies who should be at the jail, 110 have been working for the Road Patrol.

In the meantime, Harvey Moes, Hillside County Circuit Court Judge presiding over the trial between Wayne County and Sheriff Lucas, refused to rule on a motion by Sullivan Wednesday seeking to restrain the Sheriff from ordering his deputies to work further overtime.

EDITOR—I feel that what was said regarding the Van Buren Police Department had to come directly out of that office by a member of the department or by an ex-employee.

For one thing, how would a private citizen know how to read the special codes and determine what types of calls that our officers responded to?

Realizing that all our cases are open to the public to review, it would take an officer or an ex-officer to explain these codes to a non police person.

This statement is quite obvious. However, this is spoiled milk. As far as the calls go for the 4th of July weekend, there was nothing any different from any other weekend; except that our calls have doubled due to the fact that the Wayne County Sheriffs have been out of service in this area.

In regards to the sarcastic remarks pertaining to the brass. The statement referring to a terminated employee of five years. I'm sure the Chief of Police had reviewed the situation considerably before making his decision, therefore, the concerned citizen doesn't appear to know what they are talking about.

Also mentioned in the viewpoint was that two rookie officers were working together, again if the concerned citizen would have checked their resources correctly, they would have noticed that one of the officers has been with the department almost a year.

As far as I am concerned, we have an excellent Police Department. However, no matter how small or large a group, you'll always find one rotten apple in the bunch. Therefore, I support Commissioner Welty in his re-organization of the Police Department. Note—the more I think about it, the more I feel that the wry concerned citizen is nothing more than an over-educated, underminded adolescent.

SANDRA BERNARD

Cops doing their job

EDITOR—I, as a resident of Van Buren Twp., am also concerned on how "Concerned Citizen" could of gotten such classified information? Does the Police Dept. have a blabber mouth?

From all of the trouble that went on 1980 July 4th, it sounds to me like an ordinary day for our finest. On that day there were complaints from Belleville residents of parking across their drives, fights, police or ambulances couldn't get thru the heart of town for the traffic. Not to mention the garbage all over the town, lake and roads.

"If 'concerned' like so many people, has a scanner, (you must, to know just how many and what kind of runs our men in blue had); you can hear the same kind of calls any given day of the week.

There is always some poor pervert out there trying to, or raping, someone somewhere.

And, if it rains hard enough, you can double the burglar alarm runs. I can remember that (PC) property checks are all the men did in any given night. It's nice to know our finest can help other Departments and citizens with backing them up on family trouble or burglar alarms.

Helping citizens with locked keys in their cars or they can't get the car started. Even the kids knocking down mailboxes and running over lawns. I'm glad to see there were only two when there could have been 20.

I've listened to the scanner and heard four fights in one night. Thank God these were in three days. I'm sure the three sick and injured were thankful the officers came. But again, I've heard that many in one day.

Assault and batteries are an everyday happening. Only two parking complaints—really, they are slipping there, or they have really gotten in thru the peoples' heads that parking in the fire lane at K Mart Plaza is a NO NO. 11 disturbances—I could add one more to that. This very concerned citizen is really Knit-Picking. Ask any officer on any Department, five family troubles is a pretty good average for a holiday. Everyone is partying and that's the worst run for any officer. By the sound of the (DOPE), they didn't go into the park.

Chief George Montgomery is a good man.

Gez whiz, getting on to other things—I thought only the police officers had the schedule on who works which night. But if they are both certified police officers, and one has been on for more than six months, then why call them rookies? They probably know more than one of the officers in the early car.

I say the bookkeeper and the five-year veteran should speak for themselves. And all stories have two sides.

Now for the Experienced well-qualified secretary.

As I have read and heard, she had an extension of her Constable job (which is non-paying). Given to her by the Supervisor and Clerk which, if I can remember, was done without the Board's approval.

At that time why didn't they go to the front office and ask the lady up there if anyone wanted the job? What happened to the Union? Every secretary they have had in the police department has learned on the job. And the part-time one had full fringe benefits which is more than the officers get. Only if they are hurt in the car do they get medical. And if you break it down, the part-time female was getting nearly $6 an hour, while the officers are getting $5.35 an hour and doing most of their own paper work.

Anyone who's been to a township meeting knows what a circus it can be, and everyone makes mistakes. If people knew what the questions they were going to be asked of them, I'm sure they would come prepared.

I feel that our men in Blue are doing one heck of a job with or without the County being here to help.

Economic forecast

Existing home prices to rise by 34 percent by 1984

The depressed housing market is working to hold down home prices with the 1981 rate of increase expected to be lower than either the recent past or near future, according to the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

"National studies by Realtor economists indicate the median price of existing homes is expected to rise 8.9 percent this year," said Robert D. Shimmin, WWOCBR president.

"The national median price of $48,700 in 1978 rose 14.3 percent the following year to reach $55,700. In 1980 it went up 11.7 percent to reach $62,200."

Shimmin said the national median price, which was $66,400 in May, is expected to reach $67,600 by year's end. Forecasts indicate this median price will climb 11.6 percent in 1982 to reach $75,400 and another 10.6 percent in 1983 to reach $83,400.

"However, we do not expect median prices for resale homes in this area to approach this figure," he said. "The national figure is swollen by a much higher median price in the west, reported at $95,900 in May."

"In the north central states, which include Michigan, the median price remains consistently lower than in other regions. For example, the median in the north central states reported for May was $56,600. This was $9,800 or nearly 15 percent below the national median."

WWOCBR, which covers a 1,600 square mile area including major portions of northwest Detroit, Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties, tracks its sales price figures as averages of units sold. Influenced by the sale of newer, more costly homes, the average price comes out several thousand dollars above the estimated median.

The average sale price within WWOCBR's territory at the end of 1979 was $55,237. This increased 9.2 percent to reach $60,330 a year later. By May of this year, this average price had declined 3.5 percent in dipping to $58,209.

"If existing home prices here perform according to forecasts for the nation, we can expect an average price of $65,700 by year's end," Shimmin said. "Following the national path, it would be above $73,000 in 1982 and top $81,000 in 1983. This would reflect an estimated median of about $75,000 for our area."

"However, the level of price increases will be determined largely by local economic conditions. If these improve substantially to bring increased demand in the home market and strong competition for existing homes, price increases could be sharper."

Youth, stabbed to death

A 14-year-old youth has been taken into custody by Wayne Police in connection with the stabbing death of an 11-year-old youth Tuesday.

The body of William Keith Croom, 11, of 4766 Shamrock, Wayne, was found at about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in a field along Van Borne Road between Venoy and Howe roads.

According to Public Safety Director Ray LeCormu, it appeared the youth had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument, and the body showed signs of stab wounds by a sharp object.

"We received a telephone call over the emergency line... about a boy who was missing," LeCormu said. "Our officers were dispatched to the field, where they discovered the body."

The body has been turned over to the Wayne County Medical Examiner for a determination on the cause of death.

LeCormu added that "we have picked up and taken to the youth home a 14-year-old, who was the last person to see the Croom boy alive. He is a prime suspect in the case."

William, the city's first homicide victim in 1981, would have been a student at Franklin Junior High School this fall.

Views On Dental Health

By PHILIP MEIZELS, D.D.S.

FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE

If you watch television, you've probably seen the commercials selling fluoride toothpaste ("Mommy, Mommy, my group had fewer cavities!"). The best part about these commercials is that, hopefully, they may induce children to brush their teeth. It's the brushing, flossing and rinsing after eating that is the most effective preventer of tooth decay and gum disease. Toothpaste can help, but it's only a part of effective oral hygiene.

American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics.

It should be emphasized, so there is no misunderstanding, that fluoride toothpastes are not a substitute for the combination of fluoridation of community drinking water and professional fluoride treatment, which have been shown to reduce dental decay by as much as 65 percent.

Hospice: Hope for the terminally ill

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

Soft, warm colors, rainbows and laughter fill the rooms and hallways, making it hard to believe this is a place where people are dying, terminally ill persons with no chance of regaining their health.

But for the staff of the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan its patients are not there to die, but rather to live out the remaining days of their lives and to prepare themselves for what cannot be avoided, death.

"We're all terminal, but these people are actively terminal," explained Randy DuFour, director of operations for the hospice, a 42-bed facility formed by a consortium of 21 hospitals including the five peoples Community Hospital Authority facilities. "This is not a death ward, a place where people come to die. They come here to live their lives as best as they can and to the fullest with our help."

The hospice staff, which includes physicians, nurses, social worker, psychologist and chaplain, don't provide aggressive care for the patient's disease, rather palliative care, minimizing their pain and discomfort.

In fact, most patients brought to the hospice are, within 72 hours of their admittance, off intravenous fluids or tubes and are getting shots and their necessary medication orally. Frequently, there is an improvement in the patient to the point that he or she is eating on his or her own within a few days.

The medical is a part of the program at the hospice. The nursing staff is provided with 10 to 15 minutes to spend with a patient to communicate and for a relationship far different than found between patient and nurse in acute care facilities.

Patient Care Coordinator Janice Brown describes the work of the nursing staff with the patients "as the kind of nursing I always wanted to do."

'... patients, within 72 hours show a marked improvement'

"At hospice, there is an ability to use all your nursing skills with the time permitted to establish a relationship with the patient and family, to be able to assess their needs and concerns," she said. "It's good, basic hands-on nursing, providing emotional spiritual and psychological support for the patient and the family."

The nurses work in three teams and generally have the same patients, further encouraging the development of a relationship and providing continuity of care for the patient and the family.

Personal physicians also are encouraged to continue contact with the patient. However, Ms. Brown admits that the location of the hospice — Southfield — sometimes prevents continuation of the doctor's care.

The staff also is encouraged to show grief following the death of a patient. In fact, the staff follows a custom started at one of the first modern day hospices, St. Christopher's in London, England.

They place a flower and a card in memory of that person on the bed. The remembrance remains there for 24 hours, following the patient's death.

"It allows the staff to show their feelings for the person, to have a little space to remember," Ms. Brown said. "The people here are living. We take care of living people, and a counter of creative hands-on care provides a positive experience for the staff to remember in their grief."

The cost of hospice care is a third less than that of an acute care facility, specifically because of the absence of the technology found in the latter facilities. Staffing also is different.

Sixty full- and part-time nurses work at the hospice, and the ratio of staff to patients is three nurses for every eight patients and a lot more staff hours per patient, Ms. Brown said.

The hospice accepts only terminally ill patients, those beyond the point of aggressive therapy and with a life expectancy of six months or less. The average length of stay for patients is two to three weeks. Some stay for only 24 hours, others are there for five months. However, most are prepared to go home to spend their remaining time among their family members.

The hospice is only one of three such facilities in the United States. It has no visiting hours. Its doors are open to family members 24 hours a day, and families are encouraged to bring the children or bring favorite foods.

Patients also are encouraged to bring in their favorite chair, and afghan or whatever they feel is needed during their stay at the hospice.

The rainbow has become somewhat of a symbol for the staff of the hospice. They wear white to designate themselves as health care professionals, but complimenting the uniform may be a top with a rainbow splashed across the front. Even the rooms and the bedding pick up the colors of the rainbow.

"We try to make this a comfortable place as we can in an institutionalized setting," Ms. Brown explained, adding that the staff tries to provide "other, pleasant experiences for the family" including entertainment on Friday evenings.

There also is a small nondenominational chapel for patients, staff and families, as well as a viewing room, where the body of the patient is taken to await the funeral director. A quiet room, painted in a pale green, it also is a place for a grieving family member to spend a few moments with the deceased.

"A hospice is more of a philosophy of care than a building," Du Four said, "more of paying attention to the patient more of providing respect."

Du Four feels that the demand for hospice care is growing because of a growing awareness of death and dying.

"It's less of a tabu subject now, people are speaking of it more freely," he explained, adding that the idea of hospice care fits more easily into the hospital setting rather than extended care or nursing home facilities.

Packaged with love and safety

Infant car seat

Here's how hospital protects newly-born

Three local Jaycee auxiliaries, the University of Michigan Highway Safety Research Institute and the Catherine McAuley Health Center are working together to help ensure that thousands of babies born each year at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital ride home in the safety of an infant car seat.

"Averaging about 300 deliveries each month, St. Joseph's is the leading birthing center in the greater Washtenaw area, and thus has a special responsibility to help inform expectant parents about the urgent need for infant car seats," said pediatrician Daniel Chapman, MD, associate medical director of the hospital's Newborn Nursery.

Chapman pointed out that automobile accidents are the number one killer of children in the U.S.

"This situation is especially tragic when you consider that numerous studies clearly show that using car seats could reduce these fatalities by 90 percent," he emphasized.

Chapman noted that the Michigan legislature has cleared a "child car seat" law that, upon Governor Milliken's approval, will become effective in the spring of 1982, making Michigan the 8th state to enact such legislation.

The law in essence will require that all children under the age of 4 must be restrained by a car seat when in front. In back, only children under 1 year must be in a seat; those between 1 and 4 may use either car seats or lap belts, Chapman said.

In many situations, the law permits those receiving citations to eliminate the $10 fine by obtaining a car seat prior to appearance in court.

Chapman said parents "ought to accept car seat usage as readily as they accept other forms of 'preventive medicine,' such as immunizations for diphtheria, tetanus, polio and other potentially fatal diseases."

Using information and recommendations furnished by the Highway Safety Research Institute, the hospital will try to inform parents about the new law, proper usage of seats, effectiveness of various car seats on the market, where they can be purchased, and other factors.

He said that over the past year the U-M Institute has held seminars at St. Joseph's, a unit of the Catherine McAuley Health Center (CMHC), for doctors, nurses, and other CMHC health care personnel who have an opportunity to counsel parents and provide them with literature.

Chapman reported that CMHC recently donated $4,000 to the "Buckle Up Babies" car seat rental program operated by the Ann Arbor Jaycee Women (971-9669), Superior Jaycees (487-5812) of Superior Township, and the Ypsilanti Jaycee Auxiliary (434-5265). The three groups rent several hundred car seats — all GM "Loveseats" designed for infants up to 9 months or 20 lbs — for a $10 fee and $10 refundable deposit.

Chapman also noted that the American Society of Pediatrics has made the increased use of car seats a national goal through its "First Ride...Safe Ride" educational campaign.

Further information about automobile safety seats for children may be obtained by calling Kathleen Weber, U-M Highway Safety Research Institute (763-3462).

Agencies, gas co. to provide energy assistance funds

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company announced it has joined with the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) and the Wayne Metropolitan Community Service Agency (WMCSA) to provide energy assistance to low-income, unemployed residents of Wayne County outside of the City of Detroit.

"Funds are available for gas, electric or oil heating bills through three programs administered by DSS and WMCSA: Emergency Energy Assistance, Emergency Needs and Energy Crisis Intervention," said James A. Brewer, Director of Customer Information.

"In addition, MichCon makes individual payment arrangements with those customers who need help in paying their gas bills."

Teams of Michigan Consolidated, DSS and WMCSA representatives are scheduled to be at nine locations throughout the downriver, Hamtramck and Highland Park areas between July 20 and August 5 to take energy assistance applications and make the necessary referrals.

"We encourage Wayne County residents who are having problems paying their utility bills to take advantage of these programs by the September 15 deadline," Brewer said.

To qualify for assistance, customers must:

- (1) — meet low income guidelines;
- (2) — have a 30-day past due fuel bill;
- (3) — be unemployed; and
- (4) — live in Wayne County but outside of Detroit.

Residents can apply for assistance at the following locations. They must bring proof of income, personal identification, and their gas, electric or oil bill with them.

Sgt. Schuster receives marine commendation

Sgt. Michael J. Schuster, United States Marine Corps, Bridge Company, 6th Engineer Support Battalion, 4th Force Service Support Group, 4th Marine Division Fleet Marine Force USCR, Battle Creek, Mi. former student of Belleville High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schuster of Morton Taylor Road, Belleville, received a letter of appreciation from Commanding Officer, Bridge Co. 6th EngrSptBn for his tremendous knowledge of the engineering field but most notably in the Bridging area."

One example of this was demonstrated three years ago in California during the construction of the 210-foot M-6 Span. Sgt. Schuster was one of the key people through the complete job, from the planning stage to site preparation, construction, and launching of the Bridge.

Sgt. Schuster has afforded his knowledge and experience not only to fellow Marines of the Bridge Company, but also to out-of-state units.

Most recently he assisted in the construction of the M4T6 with the unit from South Bend, Indiana. This being the second occasion that Sgt. Schuster has worked with this unit.

Sgt. Schuster's leadership, which is accentuated through his motivation and excellent examples, has been very beneficial to his squad. He has instilled much pride and enthusiasm in his people, which has left them motivated and highly trained as a whole squad.

Sgt. Schuster's assistance to the Platoon Sgt. and Platoon Commander has been noted with appreciation.

For Vets

Are you returning to school this fall?

If you're a veteran planning to reenroll in or return to school this fall under the GI Bill, the Veterans Administration has a useful check list to help keep those VA education benefits coming regularly:

- Double check your choice of courses to be certain they will count toward your educational objective.
- Register early. VA and your school need time to process your registration so that GI Bill checks can be started your way promptly.
- Avoid dropping classes after registration.
- File for your GI Bill benefits as early as possible.
- If you have to interrupt your education, notify VA promptly and advise the date you expect to return to classes.
- If you change addresses, notify VA promptly. Of course, you'll want to notify the school and the post office, also.
- Submit transcripts to the college admissions and records office immediately after application is made. This will speed up the school's certification to the Veterans Administration.
- If you have any questions about the GI Bill or eligibility for it, contact the nearest VA regional office, or a service officer from one of the national veterans organizations.

Flower tips

When summer days turn hot and humid, our gardens change dramatically.

The cool temperature ornamentals such as pansies, delphiniums, snapdragons and dianthus stop flowering.

In the vegetable garden, lettuce radishes and spinach bolt to seed if they are not harvested.

To encourage cool season flowers to bloom again in the fall, shear off the old flowering stems. You will quite often find that the display they produce in the fall is even more colorful than the spring flowering.

If some early, unharvested vegetable crops go to seed, pull them up, cultivate the row and replant with a succession crop. Snap beans, beets, carrots, broccoli and cauliflower are a few vegetables worth planting in mid-summer, providing you can ensure adequate moisture.

The most pressing problems at this time of year are usually drought, weeds and pests. Many of us practice mulching as a means to control weeds and conserve moisture, but many organic mulches will need to be supplemented by midsummer to keep weeds smothered.

If you don't keep watching for insect pests and deal with them before they reach plague proportions, July can produce population explosions that will result in widespread damage.

All purpose convenience remedies are hard to find, but newer introductions of systemic insecticides make the job of combating insects easier for the gardener. These newer systemic, such as Orthene supposedly are effective against 50 insect species — from thrips on roses to mealy bugs on yews. It not only kills insects on contact, but is absorbed systemically so the plant remains protected for an extended period, regardless of the weather.

Fungus diseases also are likely to show up at this time. Two good all-purpose fungicides are Captan and Phaltan. Available as powders to mix with water and spray on plants, they are used to control powdery mildew, rust disease, botrytis blossom blight and other fungus-based diseases.

OLIVER BIGELOW

The best solution to drought in home gardens is a drip irrigation system, and it is surprising that more home gardeners have not realized the bargain that drip systems represent. This system allows a steady flow of moisture into the soil, giving it a through, penetrating soak.

Irrigation takes the gamble out of gardening; during July and August, it's easy to spot yards and gardens that are irrigated. The drip system kits are relatively inexpensive, especially when you consider the water that is wasted by spraying with hand-held hoses and half-effective sprinklers.

In summary, select short cuts to save labor time on your gardening chores, especially during the heat of the coming months.

Pets destroyed

Vandals go on rampage at farm

It is said to be nature if the weakest of young animals die, but the death of young animals at the hand of humans and for no reason is malicious vandalism.

And that is what members of the 4-H Youth Program of the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service are coping with this week, following the killing of 11 three-week-old ducklings, a part of the program's pet-a-farm.

The ducklings were among 14 and their mother were being kept at the large pond on the grounds of the Extensions Education Center this summer. They were the 4-H Fair project of an 18-year-old Belleville youth who brought the ducklings, their mother and several other animals there to be used in the free exhibit.

According to Margaret Leskosky, the 4-H youth agent, the ducklings were killed sometime during the daylight hours of Saturday and Sunday. Upset by the occurrence, she denounced the behavior of the individual or individuals involved quite vocally.

"It's one thing to drown a defenseless duckling, but what they did was mean and cruel," she said, adding that the ducklings were found laying on the bank of the center's pond, several with broken beaks and one with its eyeballs hanging from its sockets.

The animals for the pet-a-farm are donated by 4-H members and housed in a barn on the grounds of the center. To give the program more of a farm atmosphere, the mother duck and her young were kept by the pond.

This is not the first time vandals have gotten into the pet-a-farm. According to Ms. Leskosky, two incidents last year by youths 11 and 12 years old led to full restitution for damages by their parents. However, this is the first time that the animals have been attacked.

A popular attraction that has drawn as many as 300 visitors in a day since it opened three weeks ago, Ms. Leskosky added that is anymore vandalism occurs, "I will have to take drastic measures."

"Before risking having other animals destroyed, I'll close the farm," she said.

The animals are cared for by 4-H members, who are paid for 30 hours a week of work. However, Ms. Leskosky admits that they give even more time than that. The youths come to the center twice each day on weekends to care for the farm animals, and according to the youth agent, this weekend found some youngsters and older teens swimming in the pond. Police officers also ran off a group of people Saturday night, who apparently were beating a July heat wave there.

There is no guard at the facility, and the 4-Her who cares for the pond has found it difficult to keep life preservers there. Ms. Leskosky warned that the pond is not the place for would-be swimmers, since it dips sharply from 12 to 17 feet in depth.

"Obviously, a guard is needed, but in lieu of that we need neighborhood adults to keep an eye on what goes on here," she added. "We can lock the gates, but they hop the fence, so we need someone to keep a watchful eye."

The death of the young ducklings not only has upset the 4-H staff, but has had an effect on the three young people caring for the animals.

"Through the pet-a-farm we try to introduce the concept of caring about animals," Ms. Leskosky said, "but now it's like everything they've been trying to teach is down the drain."

Information on the vandalism can be directed to Ms. Leskosky's attention at 721-6576.

One of the state's youngest Eagles

Kuderik earns Eagle honors

A 13-year-old New Boston boy is one of the youngest ever in the state of Michigan to earn the prestigious rank of Eagle Scout.

Scott Kuderik, son of Theodore and Carole Kuderik, 31535 King Road, earned the Eagle honors June 1 and will be honored at a Court of Honor Dinner on Sept. 26.

Scott earned the highest award a boy scout can receive under Scoutmaster Larry Barrons, who has served 12 years as leader of Troop 1511 in Flat Rock. Young Kuderik is the 10th boy in this troop to make Eagle Scout and the eighth under the leadership of Barrons.

Scott is very unusual, not only in being one of the youngest ever to earn the highest rank a scout can achieve but is among only about one percent of all scouts who attain Eagle rank.

"We congratulate Scott on his outstanding achievement at such a young age," said Scoutmaster Barrons. "He is to be commended for his hard work and dedication that made the honor possible."

Young Kuderik, a 9th grade student at Huron High School, comes from a scouting family. Scott's grandfather, Thomas Kuderik Sr., was Scoutmaster in 1949-50, his father was a boy scout and his mother was a treasurer in cub scouts. Scott's younger brother, Matthew, is a cub scout and will become a boy scout in September.

Erie 3732 FOE Eagle Hall has been donated for the Sept. 26 ceremony honoring young Kuderik and approximately 300 people are expected to attend the Court of Honor dinner.

Edward Kinsey of Monroe will present the Covenant Eagle Award that night. Scott, who is the youngest scout in Wolverine Council ever to make Eagle, is working on his first palm and will probably receive it the same evening. He also has earned the Arrow of Light, the only award that can be carried over from cub scouts.

State Representatives and State Senators as well as present and former Huron Township elected officials have been invited to the honors dinner. In addition, President Ronald Reagan, Governor William Milliken and U.S. Congressman William D. Ford have been invited.

First Methodist Church of Flat Rock is the sponsor.

Strike's no victory for postal employees

"Neither rain nor snow, nor sleet, nor gloom of night shall stay these (mail) carriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

But a strike would stop them completely.

And as strange as it may seem, your favorite letter carrier may be walking a picket line by the time you read this. Even though it is unlawful for mail carriers to strike and despite the fact they sign a statement promising not to strike, the definite threat of a postal walkout looms imminent.

Negotiators of the two largest postal unions had promised to strike at midnight Monday if there had been no "meaningful" movement in their discussions with negotiators of the Postal Service.

However, a last minute offer by the Postal Service reportedly kept the negotiators at the bargaining table and the carriers delivered their mail yesterday. We do not know what today will bring.

A U.S. Government source reported that the new offer is an increase of $600 per year plus having Cost of Living Allowance continue. The two major postal unions — American Postal Workers Union and National Association of Letter Carriers — which represent 500,000 workers, seek a 7.7 percent pay raise this year and a 5 percent boost in each of the contract's next two years. They also want an improved cost-of-living formula, a 35-hour week, an extra holiday, child care centers and tighter safety rules.

The Postal Service claims that the pact would cost $25 billion and cause the price of a first-class stamp to rise to 45 cents by 1984. It wants a 3-year wage freeze and a limit on annual cost-of-living adjustments to about 5 percent.

The average postal worker now earns approximately $23,000 annually, including cost-of-living benefits. Some union leaders have openly said there will be a strike. But there are definite risks involved.

Postmaster General William Bolger has taken a hard-nosed position and said any postal worker will be fired if they go on strike.

No time is a good time to strike. And the unfortunate part of this possible strike — like so many other strikes — is that innocent people are hurt as a result.

The mail must go through — and reason must prevail on the part of all parties concerned to make sure that it does.

Winds of discontent

There is a wind of discontent blowing from Van Buren Township where letters that cross our desks indicate that even a greater schism is developing between some of the political factions.

It is good politics to have healthy political parties, but some of the cynics are using the recent controversy over personnel changes to the detriment of the community.

Township employees are rushing to join unions in fear that they are on some sort of "hit list" and that is never good politics — to use fear and disenchantment to one's advantage.

The best way, we have found, to earn respect and maybe pick up a vote is by "being honest" with a person. To strengthen that township, may we suggest that people in elective office quit stepping on people, and, instead extend a helping hand.

Also very concerned about Van Buren

To VERY CONCERNED" in VAN BUREN.

As I read your article, Titled: Troubled Van Buren (Another Viewpoint) in last week's Belleville Enterprise, I find that your article raises some questions, leaves out some facts, and information. It simply doesn't tell the truth as it should be told.

One of my questions is this. How do you know how many runs the Van Buren Police Department took over the 4th of July weekend and the description of the runs?

Do you have a key to the police files, which you should not have, or did you Break into and Enter the Police department after hours?

Both of these are serious charges. Is a Police Officer taking these files and Log Books to you? I'm sure I wouldn't trust this Police Officer to come to my house and take a Police Report for fear that this Officer would tell everyone my personal business.

Is this a violation of a Police Oath or Standard?

If an Officer is doing this, that Officer should be released from the Police Department as the Officer is violating Public Trust?

I am impressed by the lists of complaints that you listed that the Van Buren Police Department handled. The Chief and his Officers must be doing an excellent job, for a part time police Department. to handle that many runs.

The only thing that bothers me, is you failed to, or you failed to have your Police Officer friend to take a three day weekend (Friday thru Sunday), and compare it to the 4th of July weekend.

I'm sure if you did you would find van Buren's Finest handle 79 or MORE runs on a REGULAR WEEKEND.

So I can understand why the Chief of Van Buren P.D. did state that it was quiet around here. Also Van Buren did not have to assist Belleville P.D. because of the Fireworks this year since there were none. Last year's crowd nearly got out of hand.

Van Buren's finest are handling this many complaints on a regular basis since the Wayne County Sheriff is not around to help out. This is common to Van Buren's finest.

Also if you would have checked a little better, you would have noticed that all those runs you listed are common occurrences in Van Buren Township.

I would imagine if the Chief would have made a big deal out of what happened over the 4th of July, the Supervisor of Van Buren would have come down on him.

Also, according to our Supervisor of Van Buren, we do not need a full time Police Department, because there is not enough crime in Van Buren.

How much crime is enough? Let, we the people, decide this we, the people do go to the polls.

I believe the Chief of Police does know what is going on in the Township.

Speaking about other things in the department. Very Concerned stated that on July 11, 1981, the department had two Rookies working unsupervised in the late car, (8PM-3AM.) Could it be that the One Officer in the Early Car, (6AM-1PM), was mad because he couldn't be the Officer giving out orders that night as he likes to most of the time. Each of the Rookies in the late car have more common sense than that one officer.

By the way Very Concerned," is that the officer in the early car the one that is supplying you with the mis-information.

You also failed to state the full story about the bookkeeper. Shouldn't the article have read," a Bookkeeper who called in sick and took a Sick Day, was found working for another Township on the Day she called in Sick for at Van Buren?

How about the 5-year veteran of the force who was fired because of several complaints from citizens, from fellow Police Officers and other Police Departments, especially when he dispatched, let alone working the road? How about his dress code when on Duty? These are just a few.

Also the well-qualified Part-time Secretary who's job was created by the Supervisor of Van Buren. Saving money? Huh. If I remember, how many other well-qualified employees and residents of Van Buren Township got to put in for that job, that was especially created for the Part-time Secretary.

On the case loads issue. As of night shift ending July 15th 1981, there were 2779 handled with 475 of these cases being Property Checks, of township residences and businesses since January 1981. For the same date ending July 15 1980 there were 2711 handled with 750 of them being Property Checks which have been taken over such complaints as Breaking and Entering, Assault and Battery, Auto Accidents, Injury runs, Emergency runs, Animal complaints and many more different types of complaints.

Plus the case load is up 68 more complaints than last year and getting more and more runs every day to out-distance the number of complaints in 1980.

So really with other runs up by 275 and 68 case load increase up, I believe the Chief was very close to the 200 figure in your article.

At the time the Chief gave that figure it would have been right around 200, instead of 20 as stated.

Also when asked at the board Meeting to give those figures, why didn't the Supervisor and the new Trustee ask the Chief ahead of time to find out the exact figures from the Log Books so they could be presented to the Board, or did the Supervisor and the New Trustee want to make the Chief and Police Dept. look bad? Is this another strike against a full-time Police Department? You were right about one thing, Very Concerned, you made a quick and inaccurate check of the log book.

You are right, Very Concerned, from the Commissioner, Chief and on down, there are many good Police Officers on the Van Buren Township Police Department and it is scary to think that while the Police Department is organizing for a full time Police Department there are people who are trying to misrepresent the facts.

The Other Side of the Meridian

When a contract just isn't

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

It was an old-fashioned, clean political fight - the kind you don't see nowadays.

The human metronomes swayed from one side of the issue to the other - and the issues were as clear as black and white and, unfortunately someone later actually insinuated that race was involved.

Someone in the Inkster council chamber succinctly put the uninformed to rest with a volley of verbiage that any writer would have been proud to own.

On one side of the political pendulum was Mayor Pro Tem James Colleran and a colleague, councilman Willie Johnson; on the upswing were Mayor William Daniels, councilmen Ernest Hendricks, Robert Cullen, and Joseph Davis.

Missing from the arena area night was councilman Patrick O'Neil.

At issue were five formerly laid off Detroit police officers who were hired by Inkster. The officers must serve a one year probationary period before they will become "full-fledged" Inkster police officers. A condition of employment was that these officers move to the city of Inkster. They signed a statement that would fulfill that obligation.

The officers, who are recruits, have not made the big move.

Colleran and Johnson feel that these recruits have violated the terms of their contract and should be "immediately removed from the force."

On the other side, the opposition points out that "the courts have ruled that police officers have a right to live within the clearly defined boundaries as set forth by an arbitrator."

And the two sides blasted each other on this issue before an audience that cringed with each volley.

Oh, no, there were no four letter words. Five, yes. But four, no.

And while the two forces battled, a stately woman prepared to offer her cosmopolitan advice. Strangely enough her words have lingered longer than what the two unstately sides quarreled over that night.

The lady said:

"Gentlemen," she said in her soft voice, "Let's heed the example of Detroit which was once a fine city. For years it stood on the precipice of destroying itself because people worked in the city, received their wages and left immediately after work for the suburbs. At sundown it was a ghost city."

"A city is people," she continued. "Without people, there can't be a city."

How can you offer any argument to the contrary?

Westland panel accepts Linda's challenge

It would be very easy to say: "You can please some of the people, some of the time," etc., but Linda Kiernan, who wrote the open letter on the Miss Westland Pageant, does indeed deserve an answer, as well as the facts.

I fail to see why she is "embarrassed to have witnessed this charade", as to those who enjoyed the Pageant as a "Fun time", did not feel the least embarrassed as to be part of a community effort to show a little pride in the city where they live.

Yes indeed... we took 23 girls who worked to look their best, and made "a big deal of it"... but for Ms. Kiernan to suggest that it was a "Dog Show" lends little for others to feel that the girls were part of a "Dog Show".

No music? ... Guilty again... but several times in the past, when we did have music, the pageant ran rather long, and people were anxious to find out who the winners were.

In addition, to either pay for, or have loaned, an orchestra to play two or three songs, and then to have the pageant over, and everyone walk out, because the winners were announced, seems like a lot to ask, or pay for, for all the hard work and effort young people from John Glenn High Orchestra, gave up their entire weekend for less than 30 minutes of actual performing.

But then... they cared about the Community...

A crowded state... guilty again... however, when the pre-judging was done, the judges felt that these lovely young ladies have asked to participate in something that would be fun... not hard work... no swimsuit... no talent competition... just fun...

That instead of narrowing it down to about 12 girls, that all 24 of those considered to be semi-finalists, would instead be asked to be in the final competition.

One girl was eliminated the day prior to the pageant, when it was learned that her application was not in order to fulfill the basic requirements.

Flowers... because each and every girl would receive flowers, the winner would receive a dozen long red roses, floral arrangements did not seem practical at this point. Crepe paper??? Never saw any crepe paper, unless you call the red, white, and blue cloth bunting around the wooden stage, crepe paper.

Liven up a dull room? Again, we thought the girls, the parents and friends, and those in attendance would be just fine. Why spend money to hire, or buy something that just isn't needed. Secondly... right after the pageant, the room had to immediately be torn apart, and reset for the next day activities for the Senior Citizens.

Lights lowered... a spotlight... ?

Who would have paid for these items, after all, this was an event for everyone, and to be enjoyed.

"And the public should not be invited"? Ms. Kiernan. Good Lord, that's who this entire festival was for, the public. The citizens deserve something that they can share with each other, and where it won't cost them an arm and a leg. This was free!

I agree there was noise. That's what people choose to do when they come to a community affair such as this. I also agree... that in the future, additional sound system will have to be used for everyone to hear clearly. I disagree with "so many seedy people milling around"... people came to have a good time and not to be fashion plates.

I personally did not see any nudity, nor indecent dress. If I had, I would have asked that person to remove themselves from the ground.

I'm sorry, I haven't "gone to Livonia where the pageant is done with class." As my background for doing the pageant each year in Westland has only been a volunteer troy because of my love for the city and its people for the past 25 years.

Normally, when I MC the "Miss Michigan Universe", or at the "Miss Universe" in Buffalo N.Y., the budgets are much higher, to spend with, as the resources are unlimited, and their "appreciation" is much more generous when working with Bob Barker, as his warmp.

The girls are important, they were told each and every time we met with them, "our pageant is a community project, and a fun thing, we only have one crown, but they are all winners." I'm sorry Ms. Kiernan that you don't feel that way.

To suggest the pageant is rigged, and the winners are picked before the judging, is one of the greatest slams that could be suggested to the entire community of Westland residents.

If "one girl seemed to know who was related to whom", it might suggest that they know a little bit more about the community than others. Neither of the first two girls are related to any judge, or city official, the second runner-up happens to be the daughter of a city employee. Would you have penalized her for that? When she was a winner and a finalist in the "Miss United Teen Pageant", she won on her own merits, not a relatives. More than two of the girls would have stopped traffic. Ms. Kiernan, they all would have! "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder", and I believe each and every one of the girls was a winner. They are some of the loveliest girls in the City of Westland.

The crowd was not amazed, each one of us sees something different in each other. These lovely girls were judged on Poise, Personality, General appearance, audience appeal, and the judges personal preference, and was done with no judges discussing their particular voting with each other, until they were finished, and the ballot turned over.

I also take exception to your suggestion that those persons connected with city hall should not be considered to be a judge. Mr. Gunther was also a man who put together the tremendous parade, and is involved in so many "away from the city activities", that we felt it an honor to have him as a judge.

Mayor Taylor, and all Mayors in the past, have been a part of the judging team, but in this case, the Mayor himself asked that Council President Trav Griffin substitute for him to balance out the new faces.

Bob Jones is a local businessman as is Mike Mijal, who always contribute time and funds to various projects of the Festival. Joseph Kubek is a Master Photographer that came in at his own expense to help out, and lives away from the community. Miss Lynne Harrington represented Corey's Jewelers at Westland Center, and Tomasina Cingolani represented N.B.D. and the Chamber of Commerce. That's impartiality.

And one other thing, the entire festival was a Western Theme, and Miss Westland 1980 wore jeans in the Parade to lend support, changed into a long gown, and I assure you, what she did in her year representing the young ladies of Westland, showed more than personal-ity. It showed class.

Lastly, I, and many others who work for the City, have spent many days off, evenings, and weekends working to make the festival something to be proud of, we are joined by hundreds of people not city employees, including members of both the weekly newspapers, who have worked their behinds off at great personal expense, in time, effort and energy, and because of the fact that they became involved to help to community.

Ms. Kiernan, I have researched every meeting attendance for the past 10 years, and could not find your name at any of the meetings, nor involved in any of the committees, or offering to head up any of the activities.

We are not paid to do this. None of us. Maybe that's the difference, we do it because we love the city and its people, and those of us who have the capacity to add to a festival like this, well, enough said. "If you are not part of the solution, than you are the problem!"

I took on your challenge, somehow I don't want to "win" anything. I just don't want the girls, their parents, those connected with the festival, and most of all, the people to feel like losers.

Frontier justice editorial wrong

Editor — In the July 9th issue of The Associated Newspapers your newspaper editorialized that we "need to return to frontier justice."

The crime which prompted your reaction was truly heinous. A teenage girl was abducted, sexually assaulted, slashed viciously across the throat, and left to die in a lonely field in mid-winter.

One of the three convicted of this crime was a previously convicted wife slayer released after serving a minimum prison sentence. Your outrage was understandable and humane.

In calling for a return to frontier justice, however, you advocate a cure as bad as the disease.

Do you really want every man to be a law unto himself? Should everyone become judge, jury, and executioner?

Should each be left to interpret when the line of intolerable offense has been crossed? Is each person to be encouraged to become an avenging agent of justice, meting out retribution according to his or her own subjective standard?

Imperfect as it certainly functions, our system of justice attempts to substitute the rule of law in place of each man being a law unto himself. Among other necessary reforms, our system of justice definitely needs to handle more wisely the sentencing of convicted offenders. That is what we need, not a return to the lawlessness of frontier justice.

Romulus police is criticized

Editor — I feel I must write this letter in regards to the new Romulus Police Force the city was forced to start.

Last week a theft occurred at our home, and I called the police. It took 1 hour, 55 minutes for the patrol car to arrive. Finally, when the police arrived he displayed a very careless attitude about our problem. He then stated: "You're not the only one who needs a police car in Romulus." He gave us the opinion he was doing us a favor. He then stated when he worked for the Detroit Police Dept. they wouldn't even send a patrol car on such a small run.

We lived in Romulus since 1969 and on five different incidents called the Sheriff's Department for police services. Once because of a death of a family member to only a broken window. Each time we called the police car arrived within minutes, and the policeman was different each time, but he expressed a real concern for our problem and made us feel he wanted to help.

This as a taxpayer, makes you feel that your getting a return for your tax dollar. When I called the Romulus Police I felt I was talking with a "Cowboy from the wild West" who didn't have time to or didn't want to help.

I read in the paper this week where Sheriff William Lucas is in court trying to keep the Road Patrol. I've talked with other neighbors on my block and we all have our fingers crossed that Sheriff Lucas wins, and the City Fathers in their good judgement return the Sheriff's Dept's to the streets of Romulus.

Westland paving in trouble

EDITOR — What has happened to city government in Westland?

For many years the city has wasted the taxpayers money with reckless abandon and blatant disregard for its people.

Last year, the city proposed a paving program with misinformation to the people, that didn't need anyone to ask for; but would take 51% of the home owners to stop it.

The city didn't think the people would get together to stop them, but when they did, the Council moved the vote on it up to the next week and passed it.

But, the people didn't roll over and die, instead they banded together and the fight was on.

And while this fight was under way our Mayor and his colleagues were all set to suck us into the cable T.V. business, without a voice or vote where our money is concerned (Keep that in mind).

The people, once again, got together and got petitions signed to have it put to a vote of the people, much to the dislike of the mayor.

Just prior to this the voters turned down his millage hike in November, which upset the mayor to no end.

Now, you see, the city coffers have gone dry. Mass layoff and our local government is blaming us for the passing more of mills so they can go on spending sprees.

Now, with the November millage hike defeat and the petition to have the cable T.V. put to a vote by the people, and not the mayor and his good old boys, things start to look bad for our "Tommy".

But, he gambles and has the millage and cable proposals placed on a ballot and voted on by the people in February. And Guess what? The people turn out in record numbers and shout down both millage and cable.

Now, the only thing the mayor and his boys have left to get money out of the people, is the paving assessment. (Keep in mind that around cable time last year we became short of money too.) So, when the people were told to put the assessment money for the paving in an interest bearing account until a final ruling by the court has been made. (The case is still in litigation.) Now, our mayor and his boys put a gun to the head of the taxpayers in Westland by saying that they will not accept anything less than all the money from the people on their city taxes.

Well, to this I say; people in the paving areas put your assessment monies, for the paving, into an interest bearing account and send a letter, along with a check for the rest of your city tax, to the city, stating which bank it has been put in, and that it will not go to the city until a final ruling by the courts.

Just remember, if the city handled your money right in the first place, then, they would not have to force a bad paying job down our throats, as they are trying to do.

Another look at foster homes

EDITOR — Why is every one so much against the Foster Care Home programs?

Everyone has the right to a place to live. And, everyone including handicapped people, is entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

If there are problems that do occur at these homes, the citizens should be able to work them out, and be happy they are not as unfortunate as the people who are involved in the situation.

I would like to add, I am for the program. And shall continue to support it in the future.

Marklynn's letter unfair to Vietnam

EDITOR — John Marklynn's letter on Vietnam was reasonable and dispassionate, yet I feel his conclusions are unfair to the Vietnamese people.

Mr. Marklynn states that Americans usually did the fighting in Vietnam. That was true only of large-scale operations during one period of the war, 1965-1968. Two facts show that, viewing the war in its totality, South Vietnamese forces (ARVN) carried the main burden.

First, the war started some seven years before the first U.S. ground combat forces landed, and it continued some three-and-a-half years after our ground combat forces left. Somebody was fighting the Communists during those periods. The second fact shows who: ARVN lost some 200,000 combat dead, more than four times as many as the U.S.

Certain facts also undermine Mr. Marklynn's opinion that we lost because the South Vietnamese did not want to win.

First, their combat losses as well as the heavy refugee flows away from Communist control during and after the war — not to mention today's continued guerrilla resistance against the Communists in South Vietnam (often by remnants of ARVN) — strongly suggest the South Vietnamese did want to win.

Obviously they did not want to win badly enough to make the ultimate sacrifice of a national suicide stand, but most did want to avoid Red rule.

Second, whatever the degree of South Vietnamese commitment, that did not decide the war, for two reasons: (1) given the enormous Soviet military aid to North Vietnam, no imaginable level of heroism and sacrifice by the South Vietnamese could have achieved victory after the virtual cessation of U.S. aid, and (2) despite all the flaws in South Vietnamese politics and society, South Vietnam remained free until after we drastically reduced our aid. We'll never know for sure, but I think adequate U.S. aid would have given them a fighting chance.

It is interesting that Mr. Marklynn contrasts Korea and Vietnam. Interesting because the bad things he says about the Vietnamese are almost identical to the things Korean War GI's said about Koreans. (It wasn't true then, either: there, too, native soldiers did most of the dying.) South Korea is no more free or democratic than South Vietnam was (maybe less), yet it survives. The difference is continued U.S. support.

Lastly, he says Vietnamese did not care about liberty. He may be partly right, but not entirely. Vietnamese may not share our liberal and democratic idealism, but they certainly understand and value their personal, everyday freedom. The right to own land, elect village leaders, speak out, choose their own jobs and friends, avoid political indoctrination — these things matter a great deal to them, which is why so many did (and continue to) resist Communism.

I share Mr. Marklynn's wish that Vietnam could rest in peace. Thanks to the Communists, it cannot. It is still at war, smothered by tyranny and "reeducation" camps, mired in the worst poverty and hunger ever, corrupt and miserable. There is no peace for Vietnam.

Marketplace breeds rats

EDITOR — The conditions of the alley behind the supermarket and stores in the Cherry Hill Plaza, namely, behind Farmer's Market in Inkster is appalling.

Between the smell and the rats, it definitely is a health hazard. I truly believe our taxes should go down instead of up because we have to live behind the alley.

The refrigeration unit on top of Farmers' Market supposedly has bad bearing. The sound is unnerving. It runs constantly. We have talked to the manager and owner concerning it. We get so many stories, we don't know who to believe if anybody. The manager told us that the parts were on order and would be fixed within the week. That was three weeks ago. He also said that he would take care of it and that "we don't want to get the city council involved in this." The unit was installed in 1952 and we don't hold much hope for repairs — it should be replaced.

Now for the rest of the alley. The dumpsters are in terrible condition. They are rusty and bent so that the side doors won't close. The lids are never closed.

In fact, one of the lids on the dumpster Kresge's uses is missing. Because the trash in these bins are exposed, there have been fires set inside of them. Isn't this a fire hazard?

Every time there is a fire, the firemen have informed me that this is against the city ordinance and the store owner will be given a citation. Nobody ever comes out to check after that to see that the store is conforming to the code. Waste Management of Michigan empties their dumpster at 6 a.m. Have you ever heard one of the dumpsters being emptied? It is not a pleasant way to wake up. There has been a few times when it has been 4 a.m. As I understand it, there is no city ordinance against dumping this early. Why Not?

Evidently the new businesses that come into the shopping center are not informed of any city ordinances. Chapman Meats rinse out their empty meat trays in the alley and the residue just sets there. Do you know what is in these trays — blood and raw meat. A rats buffet. The alley should be hosed down at least once a week. Maybe a fire truck can be used to accomplish this.

Private parties are continuously dumping their trash in the dumpsters. The bins are barely adequate for the store let alone other people. If these people live in Inkster, I can see why they dump. Our special pick-up is not very reliable. There should be metal signs posted at each end of the alley informing people that such dumping is illegal. We have discussed this with Mr. Charlie Guy. We agreed to obtain license numbers from as many vehicles as possible that were dumping and notify him of these numbers — only one problem. He doesn't return our calls. We called the store owner and he in return notified the police. The store owner said they didn't seem too concerned to issue any violations.

I understand that there is someone from the city that inspects the alley. I'm not sure how often it is. I am interested in seeing these reports.

There are signs posted on each end of the shopping center stating that it is unlawful to park trucks there. There are always trailers there. It seems to me that this is an easy way for the city to collect some money. Why is this law not enforced.

And finally, why does the city contract out the trash pick-up to a company that continuously leaves little piles of glass on each block that the street cleaner seems to avoid.

Proud but disappointed

EDITOR — We are the proved parents of Amanda Faith Long - third place runner-up of the Westland Baby Contest.

We are also very disappointed faithful readers of the Westland Eagle.

The first place winners were pictured and names mentioned on the front page of last weeks Eagle. (7-9-81) would it of been too much to ask to include four more names of the second and third place winners?

We anxiously awaited our copy of the Eagle to see our daughters name in the paper — something I know she would treasure in the future, but much to our dismay there was no mention of her name.

Although Amanda was picked for third place — she is first with us, and I feel she deserves the recognition.

'More on concerned'

EDITOR. In regards to your recent News Report, the Chief of Police of Van Buren Township knows more about what goes on in Van Buren Township than you give him credit.

The Command Officers were aware of the fact that there was a pipeline of information from within; now thanks to you, this was pointed out to many people. Be assured that steps have been taken to plug this pipeline as much as possible.

We had more than one case this year where someone let out information, and persons were hurt for assisting the Police Department. But "concerned citizen" this is all water under the bridge now.

Reflections

Sounds of summer

The sound of little ones laughing and screaming, turning wheels on cement, squeaking brakes of bicycles, and the cries of babies, is wafting through my window.

Sounds of summer.
A time of lushness and growth.
And I sit here empty.

For several days I have walked around as an empty pitcher waiting to be filled. Waiting. Reaching out into time to bring back that which has been always known but remains welcome. . . and elusive.

"What are you doing, Grandma?" my grandson Mike asks.
"I'm trying to write," I tell him.
"What are you writing about?" he asks.

"Nothing. Absolutely nothing. I can't think of a thing," I answer.
"Write about me," he grins.
"What have you done different?" I ask, watching his big blue eyes go inward as he searches for what he did that was different.

"I hung upside down on that limb you keep telling me isn't safe. It didn't break."
"Good," I answer absently.

"I know what you can write about," says my other grandson, Jason.

"What is that?"
"Write about dinosaurs," he urges.
"Everyone likes to read about dinosaurs!"

"I don't know much about dinosaurs," I answer.

"Well you could write about how the brontosaurus never ate meat, and how tyrannosaurus rex was meat eating and the biggest one, and how stegosaurus was a bird-hipped dinosaur," he pontificates.

"What's bird-hipped?" I ask.
"You know, his front legs are short so that he can eat plants and stuff like that."

Mike's eyes grow big.
"You sure are smart for a seven year old," he says in admiration. Mike has a heart that encompasses the world, and he spreads love and admiration wherever he goes.

"Yep," says Jason. "I'm like my dad. I'm almost as smart as him. It probably will take me quite awhile to know as much as him, though."

"I'm glad you're humble," I tell him.
"I gotta be. My dad says its good to be smart but you shouldn't tell nobody because if you're really smart they are already going to know it."

"Wow," says Mike.
The ringing of the telephone breaks our conversation and I lift up the receiver to hear my only granddaughter shouting over the wire.

"Grandma, grandma, I won, I won."
"Oh Darcy," I cry. "I'm so happy! What did you win?"

"First place in free-style," she shouts.
"Oh, Grandma, isn't that wonderful?" The screen door bangs as my youngest comes rushing into the room.

"What are you doing, Mom?"
"Trying to write," I answer.
"Trying, what do you mean trying?"
"I haven't been able to think of anything..."

"We're helping her," shouts the grandsons, and Darcy shouts goodbye over the phone.

"You can write about me," she says, tossing her long hair back over her shoulders.

"What did you do that would be interesting..."
"Well, nothing yet, really, but you know that $25 Adam lost in my car, and I told him when he called that I would keep it for him until he picked it up tonight?"

I nodded.
"Well, I spent it today."

"And you think that would be interesting to my readers?"
"Oh, not that, but it might be interesting to them how I am going to be able to have $25 here tonight when Adam comes."

"And how do you propose to do that?" I ask, watching her leaping out of the chair she had scrounged into.

"I'm going to find Dad...right now," she grins.

The sounds of summer hang heavy on the air. The pitcher remains unfilled. And I wait ... and wait ...

Only in America: Disposable churches

Only in America: Disposable Churches.

As I'm writing this, a week before you will be reading it, they are tearing down the Immaculate Conception Church in Poletown.

The workers are chipping away at the base of a cross on the roof. The base gives way and the cross breaks loose, suspended in midair by wires and ropes. It is slowly being lowered to the ground below, where there are people kneeling and sobbing and clutching at rosary beads.

Father Karasiewicz, the priest of the dying church, outwardly strong and resolute, is giving final comfort to his parishioners.

At the first sound of the wrecking ball, he winces and looks to the sky.

His rectory is going, going, gone; his kitchen, his office, his sanctuary. His life.

The caretaker of God's House watches it being reduced to so much rubble. His outward calm belies the fact that he is fought for this church and lost.

He drew up his courage and told the mortal powers they were wrong—that if, for 63 years, the people of this parish have seen this building as God's place, then that is what it is—and should be immune from the ravages of cardinals and archdiocese' and automobile factories.

I wonder to myself as I watch, what must God be thinking? If He was pleased 63 years ago, when this church was dedicated in His name, what is His reaction now to a wrecking ball blasting into His Holy wall?

What is it about the Midwest, especially, that causes normally thinking people to digress and tear down at whim? Why are the churches in America more disposable, for instance, than those in Europe?

The Church of the Immaculate Conception was a mere babe compared to European churches. They've stood for hundreds of years and will stand, presumably, for more years and will stand, presumably, for more years than you and I will ever see.

Millions of dollars go into maintaining and preserving those relics, even though they are damp and drafty and cost a fortune to heat. And even though the acoustics are terrible and the pews are worn and hard—and even though the kneeling benches drive semi-permanent ridges into the knees.

But none of that matters in the serene, secure, stillness of a centuries-old church.

Along El Camino Real in Mexico and California, the 17th Century Spanish missions have foot-thick walls and high walled gardens to keep out the sounds of the everyday world.

There are pews and benches and seats around fountains for the meditators and the contemplators. There are El Greco statues and mile-high frescoed ceilings and even, in some, golden altars. The people who give tender care to these buildings couldn't even imagine having lost them after only 63 years.

The comfort of an old church is its foreverness. There is life in it. One can feel God's presence there. I have never, I'm sorry to say, felt it in a modern church. It takes time for a church to absorb the lifeblood of its community. Only after countless dramas—births, baptisms, marriages, deaths—can a church breathe God's—and man's—spirit. The community has to come to trust a church, believe in its strength, its continuance before it gives itself over to it.

And, after 63 years, the community had given themselves, body and spirit, to the Immaculate Conception Church. The church was theirs. And out of love and loyalty and a false sense of ownership, they tried to save it.

There is a cruel hypocrisy in an organized religious body using its power to destroy an edifice it had once deemed holy. Its credibility is destroyed along with the building. Never again could a right-minded person trust that body with his or her faith.

How can the Catholic church demand absolute loyalty of its followers without giving the same in return? In this case, even simple loyalty would have meant maintaining a financially unstable church simply because there were still parishioners who had need of it. Didn't the church, at one time, have need of them?

Didn't those same parishioners and their families, for 63 years, give unselfishly and lovingly their hard-earned nickles, dimes and dollars to support that building? Shouldn't their contributions have insured it some sort of immortality?

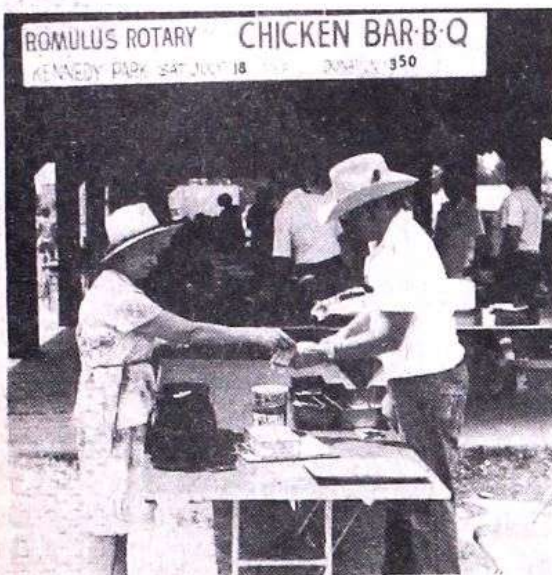

I will grant you that there are things in this world that are expendable—but a building that houses a church shouldn't be one of them. It is asking too much of a believer to suspend his view of his church as God's House—and to see it, instead, when it is expedient, as mere bricks and mortar.

Rotarians 'Bar-B-Q' their chickens

The Colonel may have his "finger-lickin' good" chicken, but the Romulus Rotarians proved that they'll take a back seat to no one when it comes to barbecuing chicken.

The Rotarians were out in force during the annual Sidewalk Sales and, for the price of $3.50, had some 1,500 chickens ready for their "Bar-B-Q".

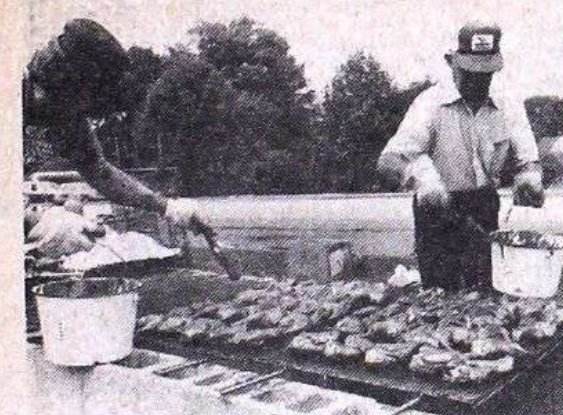

And the chickens, flown in from Georgia, were an instant success with the public who helped the local Rotarians raise between $2,500 and $3,000 to utilize for their scholarship funds and community service projects.

Docusen nearly upset 'Sugar Ray'

Boxer recalls brush with immortality

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

It was a warm June evening in 1948. A light rain had reduced the size of the crowd on hand at Chicago's Comiskey Park to watch the legendary Sugar Ray Robinson defend his world welterweight championship against a 21-year-old Filipino from New Orleans, Bernard Docusen.

Few gave Docusen (pronounced Duke-essen) any hope that night, including the bookies who listed Sugar Ray a 5-1 favorite to pick up an easy paycheck. But the flashy Southerner had different plans for the man generally considered among the finest boxers of all time.

"He's the best I've ever met...by far," Robinson told reporters in the aftermath of his unanimous 15-round decision.

Newspaper accounts described the champ as "the picture of bewilderment" after he had rallied from impending defeat to floor Docusen in the 11th round and take control of the fight.

Now, more than 33 years later, Docusen still thinks about his brush with immortality. And what might have been if a left hook had not landed on his chin.

"I changed my style for that fight," recalled the Westland resident, known for his hand and foot speed rather than punching power. "I kept coming at him, forcing him backwards. He was breathing hard and I was ahead on points after 10 rounds.

"That was my first 15 rounder because it was a championship bout," he added. "All my previous fights had been scheduled for 10 rounds. It was in the 11th round that Robinson caught me with my hands down. A left hook and a right cross put me down for the count of nine. The rest of the way I survived on pure guts."

Following the near upset, Robinson predicted that the lightning quick Docusen would eventually gain the welterweight Johnny Bratton and junior despite amassing a 66-10-6 record during a 10-year pro career with victories over such eventual world title holders as welterweight Johnny Bratton and Junior welterweight Tippy Larkin. In 1953 the "Duke of Orleans" suffered a beating at the hands of Joey Giambra and retired.

At the age of 54 Docusen has finally returned to the ring as trainer for pro kickboxer Roger Hurd and instructor for young boxers in Wayne. Only six pounds over his fighting weight at 5-9 and 153 pounds, he is employed as a custodian in the Wayne-Westland School District.

Unfortunately, this personable husband and father of six children bears some scars from his ring wars. Brain damage has slowed his reflexes, a reminder of a career than began at the age of 12 and often saw as many as four bouts per month.

"Yeah, I was thrown to the wolves sometimes," he admitted, shaking his head. "My trainers and managers meant well but they were inexperienced. There were times I fought when I shouldn't have.

"Where I grew up everybody was a fighter," he laughed. "I shined shoes at the French market in New Orleans and if you didn't fight you might as well have stayed home."

Docusen fought...and fought and fought. A national AAU champ at 14, he went on to a pro career as a featherweight, lightweight and eventually welterweight, attaining the No. 1 contender's ranking prior to the Robinson match. His brothers Maxie (former lightweight champ of California) and Regino also turned to boxing.

Docusen's gross earnings for 82 professional fights? $250,000. A far cry from the multi-million dollar purses commonplace in today's welterweight division (his take from the title bout in 1948 was $7,000). He left the game "flat busted."

"I had trouble getting a fight with any of the top guys after fighting Robinson," Docusen recalled. "It was different in those days without television and the whole media hype—there wasn't pub-

Westland's Bernard Docusen (left) earned a 10-round decision over Frankie Fernandez in Honolulu, nearly one year after the flashy welterweight had lost a decision to Sugar Ray Robinson. Here Docusen ducks a right hand during this 1949 bout. Today Docusen is employed as a school custodian and trains young boxers in Wayne.

Bernard Docusen is shown training for his welterweight title fight in 1948 against Sugar Ray Robinson. The championship bout had been delayed twice previously (once due to rain, once due to Robinson's inability to make the weight limit). The combatants finally entered the ring in Chicago on June 28, 1948 with Robinson winning a surprisingly difficult 15-round decision.

MOVIES

James Bond succeeds this time

"For Your Eyes Only" From United Artists. Produced by Albert Broccoli. Directed by John Glen. Starring Roger Moore, Topol and Carole Bouquet. Rated "PG."

By STEVE WALZ
Special to Playtime

Many people would have you believe that "Moonraker," the last James Bond adventure, was the best ever. I tend to disagree, since Roger Moore's acting was haphazard at best and was overshadowed by the abundance of dazzling special effects.

But, "For Your Eyes Only," the newest 007 offering, is probably the best Ian Fleming adaptation since "From Russia With Love."

The key to the tracking device's location and its salvageability lies in the hands of a Greek double-agent who is gunned down just as Bond arrives on the scene. The daughter of the slain Greek agent, Melina (Carole Bouquet), is hell bent on avenging her parent's death, so she joins forces with the dashing 007.

Bond's job is made more complicated when he discovers that the man who is thought to be his nemesis turns out to be an ally. So James must try and wrangle his way through this tangled web of intrigue, lest Britain be made vulnerable to Soviet attack.

Bond saves the day, but not without the standard harrowing experiences. He must resist the Lolita-like charms of an over-sexed ice-skating queen (Lynn-Holly Johnson); outrace a crack East German biathlon assassin; outmaneuver a killer mini sub; etc.

"For Your Eyes Only" succeeds because, for once, 007's human qualities are flushed out (at the expense of other characters) with Roger Moore delivering a remarkably solid performance. This flick also does not have to rely upon special effects to bolster an already exciting story, though the underwater sequences were terrific.

I'd also nominate Sheena Easton for a Grammy, based on her spell binding offering of the title song.

JOE JACKSON
"Jumpin' Jive"
(A&M)

"When my Dad was my age," writes Joe Jackson, "Jazz was not respectable. It played in whorehouses, not Carnegie Hall."

And so Jackson, forsaking assured commercial success (ala "Is She Really Going Out With Him"), gives us his "Jumpin' Jive," a collection of "Classics of Jump, Jive, and Swing, all from the 1940s." Crafted with love and sealed with a snap of the fingers, this album certainly isn't for everyone (i.e. radio programmers), but it just might be for you.

If you've ever heard of Cab Calloway (the "Hi-De-Ho Man") or Louis Jordan, ask your folks about them sometime. They'll tell you about "when music was really music" and that whole shik, but when they're done talking, ask if they've any old 78's around, and if so, check 'em out. If you don't have access to the real thing, check out "Jumpin' Jive."

Comprised of, as stated earlier, all non-originals from the 40's, the album starts out hot with Lester Young's tribute to a famous New York DJ, "Jumpin' With Symphonic Sid." Three of the remaining eleven numbers are from Calloway, with all the rest by, as Jackson himself states, "Our main inspiration, Louis Jordan, the King of jukeboxes, who influenced so many but is acknowledged by so few."

Favorites include "Is You Is Or Is You Ain't My Baby," "You Run Your Month (And I'll Run My Business)," "Five Guys Named Moe," "Jack, You're Dead," and of course, "What's The Use Of Getting Sober (When You're Gonna Get Drunk Again)." All are done true to style, with Jackson not even touching the original arrangements. Purists may not like it, but then again, purists (or, as I call them, "snobs") didn't even like this stuff the first time around.

Joe Jackson's reasons for making an album such as this are twofold: For one thing, fun. He loves playing this music. For another, hopefully many who hear "Jumpin' Jive" will be intrigued enough by the music to seek out records by the original artists, which are readily available in well-stocked record stores like Dearborn Music and Schoolkid's (in Ann Arbor).

After all, if the Blues Brothers can do it, then why not Joe Jackson? As the song goes, you owe it to yourself to "Reap this righteous riff." And if not, then "Jack, You're Dead."

Former welterweight contender predicts Leonard will win decision

lic pressure forcing the top contenders to face each other.

"Gambling was my downfall outside the ring," he said. "Gambling on horses, dice, cards. I lost my rings, my watches, everything. I blew my money on cars, women and nice clothes."

"Then I became a Christian in 1953. Receiving Jesus Christ in my heart as my Lord was the greatest and happiest moment in my life. Before I didn't need God because I had my Cadillacs and my clothes."

"I don't feel bad about missing the riches that would have come had I held on against Sugar Ray," continued Docusen, who attends Tri-City Assembly of God in Canton, "because I don't know if I would have become a Christian."

But isn't he a bit envious of the fame and paydays which await today's boxers?

"Not at all," he answered, flashing a smile. "I'm glad for these boys. Fighting is the toughest game around—they should earn what they can and then get out."

"Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns are the only welterweights around today who would have also done well in my time. Leonard is my favorite because he's so stylish."

Docusen, who is a member of the New Orleans Sports Hall of Fame, also believes that the modern day Sugar Ray will outpoint Hearns in their upcoming extravaganza.

"It'll be Leonard in a decision," Docusen predicted. "Ray will throw more punches at Hearns than he's ever seen. Ray is too smart—he'll move in and out. Instead of slugging it out."

"Hearns has the reach but reach doesn't mean anything to a great fighter. Hearns needs more than one punch to take Leonard out and Ray has a good jaw. "I always preferred fighting a puncher rather than someone with the speed and ring smarts of Leonard." After all, it was a Sugar Ray who kept Docusen from reigning as welterweight champion of the world.

Dennis Bergmooser, Dawn Garrett marry at afternoon nuptial mass

During a nuptial high mass, celebrated at St. Stephen's Catholic Church in New Boston, double ring vows were exchanged between Dawn Marie Garrett, the daughter of the

MRS. DENNIS R. BERGMOOSER

Orville Garretts of 533 Bellestri Dr., Monroe, and Dennis Richard Bergmooser, the son of the Richard Bergmoosers of 38830 Barth Rd., Romulus.

The Rev. Alexander J. Wyrwal presided at the four o'clock rite at which Dorothy Roberts was organist and Gerry Klaes the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a Venise lace and chiffon creation designed with a Queen Ann neckline, long sleeves and wateau train.

Her waltz-length veil, bordered with matching lace and pearls, was secured by a little lace Juliet cap. She wore a petite cluster pearl necklace, a gift from her Godmother, Mrs. Dan Mullholand, and carried a nosegay of roses, carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor Susan Bert wore pink and bridesmaids in pale orchid included Kelly Ott, Kristen Northrop, Cheryl Aldrich and Elaine Braden. They wore gowns of polyface fashioned with off-the-shoulder ruffled necklines and tired ruffled skirts and carried single long-stemmed white roses tied with streamers to match their frocks.

Jenny Lynn Garrett was flower girl at her aunt's wedding and a nephew, Chad Everett Stricklen, served as ringbearer. Jenny carried a wee basket filled with pink and orchid silk flowers and wore a white polyface gown.

The bridegroom asked Mark Barron to be best man and his brother, Allan Bergmooser; the bride's brother, Randy Garrett, and John Roberts and Tim Wilson to be groomsmen.

Following their wedding reception at Monroe Council 1266 Knights of Columbus Hall, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in Northern Michigan.

The new Mrs. Bergmooser is a 1981 graduate of Monroe High School. Her husband, a student at Toledo University, is majoring in electrical engineering and hopes to graduate next June. The young couple is now residing in Toledo.

Cook-out marks 25th anniversary

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM T. BLADE

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Blade of 10910 Hannan Rd., Belleville, were the surprised guests of honor on the Fourth of July at a cookout planned by their son, Bill, and his fiancée Kathy Barley of Wayne, and their daughter and son-in-law, Lyla and Mark De Witt of Romulus.

William Blade (better known as "Tom") took Lodema A. Closs as his bride on July 7, 1956 at the First United Presbyterian Church in St. Ignace.

On the day of their 25th anniversary celebration they had no grandchildren but one day later, they were twice blessed with twin grandsons, Charles and Christopher De Witt.

The Blades, who have been residents of the area for 21 years, have operated their own welding company, Blade Welding Service, Inc. for some 15 years. Tom's spare time is spent bowling, boating, fishing with his wife, in jujitsu and coin collecting. Mrs. Blade is involved with church committee activities and needlework. potpourri

By Lee Smith -- Suburban Living Editor

Seems that you "distaffers" out there are an avid bunch of recipe collectors and, like yours truly, are always on the look-out for different ways to make use of garden produce. With zucchini the number-one crop at the moment (and lordy, it seems to double in size from one evening to the next) I'm up to my mama-san apron neckline in that young, tender and oh-so-versatile green stuff.

Having gotten the old natural gas grill converted (at long last) to bottled gas, we celebrated with some steaks and chops. And, rather than the usual potato and salad route, the family was given the "taste-testers role" for still another casserole... this one Baked Stuffed Zucchini. Since it was one of those gawdawful humid days, I veered away from the standard oven and called on the microwave. Unfortunately, I did not time things exactly — I experimented, and it worked! So — those with a bit of microwave know-how and lots of guts can do their own conversion. It's really pretty simple.

And since "B.S.Z." drew the anticipated oohs and ahs, I'm pleased to pass this on for your squash collection.

BAKED STUFFED ZUCCHINI

4 small zucchini
3 tablespoons corn oil
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
½ teaspoon salt
dash pepper
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
4 tablespoons shredded swiss or Monterey Jack cheese

Cut a thin, lengthwise slice from each zucchini. Scoop or cut out pulp, leaving a shell about ⅜-inch thick. Coarsely chop pulp (there should be about 1½ cups). Place zucchini shells cut side down in a rectangular baking dish. Fill with ⅜-inch hot water. Cover with foil. Bake in 425-degree oven 15 minutes or until tender (just a few minutes in microwave if that will help — and cover with seran with a bit of space left open at one corner.)

Meanwhile, in large skillet heat oil over medium heat. Add onion, stirring occasionally, until tender. Add chopped zucchini, mushrooms (fresh, if possible), green pepper, oregano, salt and pepper. Stirring occasionally, cook 10 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in bread crumbs. Drain cooked zucchini shells as soon as they are tender. Fill with mixture; sprinkle each with 1 tablespoon cheese. Bake in 425-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes (again use your own system in the microwave) or until heated through. This makes 4 nice servings.

HAVING TOUCHED ever so briefly on those fresh mushrooms (one of nature's most delicious offerings), there are a few tips on the goodies to take into consideration. These come from the people at the Dole company.

As mushrooms mature, they lose moisture. This gradually causes their veils to open. Open or closed, the veils do not affect the mushroom's quality, only their flavor. If you like full-bodied flavor, select open veiled mushrooms since close veiled ones have a lighter, more delicate taste.

Mushroom sizes vary. Use small ones in salads, fancy garnishes and sauces and medium size for dips or sauteing. Large mushrooms are elegant stuffed or served as a main dish.

With care, mushrooms will stay fresh for several days. Place them in a small paper bag or paperboard container and store them in the crisper drawer of your refrigerator. Never soak mushrooms. Just before using, rinse quickly under cold water and pat dry or brush clean with a damp cloth.

IDON'T KNOW whether you readers have a problem keeping parsley fresh once you purchase it. Until recently, I was plagued by parsley either drying out and/or getting slimy after too short a time.

By an odd quirk, I found "the" method for keeping it "bouquet" fresh and what a simple solution! Having picked up a particularly lovely, full bunch at the food store, I placed it in a stemmed coffee mug and used it as a centerpiece on our patio table. By another fluke, I just placed the whole "arrangement" in the fridge intending to get it into the crisper eventually.

But, for once, my procrastination paid off. the parsley stayed as fresh and perky as the day I bought it and was still in that condition almost two weeks later. I merely changed the water every few days and that did the job.

And with the garden supply in, you don't have to run out to the patch to snip your sprigs; you can maintain a supply that's as good as fresh-picked.

TAKING VISITORS into the "Big City" by any chance? You might like to arm yourself with a few bits of trivia (known facts) about Detroit and its periphery.

Here are a few to make you appear "in-the-know" —

- The Detroit Plaza, all 73 stories, is the world's tallest hotel.
- Detroit has the largest concentration of Arabs and Belgians in the country and is well up on the list for other ethnic groups, all drawn here by the American dream of working hard (remember when people believed in that?) to earn a prosperous tomorrow.
- Detroit had the first inground freeway, the first traffic light, the first stretch of concrete pavement and the first regular radio broadcast.
- Detroit has more league bowlers than any other city.
- When professional golfers make up an all-American golf course, composed of the nation's toughest holes, they usually pick for the 16th the 408-yard "lake monster" at Oakland Hills Country Club, scene of the recent Senior Open.
- The Westcott marine mail boat, which delivers to passing freighters in the Detroit River, is the only postal service of its kind in the country.
- Greenfield Village generally is considered one of the nation's top 10 tourist attractions.
- St. Anne's near the Ambassador Bridge, is the nation's second oldest Catholic parish. (And when will the wrecking ball be hitting IT?)
- Hard to believe, but true: Detroit sits right on top of a salt mine. More than 25 miles of tunnel have been dug beneath the city.

THE BOTTOM LINE: There's only one thing worse than a flooded basement, and that's a flooded attic. (Special for two recent "bailers" somewhere north of Chicago.)

RICE IS NICE OUTDOORS

With the barbecue season upon us, it's time to take to the great outdoors. And, as an energy-saving measure, more and more people are turning to their grills for more than the occasional hot dog or hamburger.

If you're planning a meal of grilled chicken, pork or ribs, make the grill do double duty and have it prepare a side dish of Barbecue Rice to complement whatever meat or poultry you're serving.

First prepare your cooking pouch. Place two 18-inch square sheets of heavy duty aluminum foil on top of one another in a medium-size bowl. Press down to form a pouch. Next combine 2 1/4 cups Minute rice, 2 1/4 cups water, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine and 3/4 teaspoon salt in pouch. Stir gently to moisten all rice, then fold foil to close tightly and remove pouch from bowl. Bring to a boil on grill over hot coals. Move to side of grill and let stand at least 5 minutes. Open foil and fluff rice with fork before serving. Fast, simple preparation with foolproof packaged enriched precooked rice, plus easy cleanup, makes outdoor eating doubly easy to take.

Golfers set sights on city titles

Hawley: 'It's a wide-open tournament'

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

There will be some new city champions among the more than 100 golfers teeing off Saturday and Sunday in the 22nd annual City Championship Golf Tournament at Fellows Creek Golf Club on Lotz Road in Canton.

"Several defending champions from last year are not able to play this year so there should be some wide open competition for various city and flight titles among the five communities participating," said Bill Hawley, tourney director. "We're very gratified with the good response and look forward to another outstanding tournament."

Golfers who live or are employed in the cities of Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Canton and Garden City will play 18 holes Saturday and 18 holes Sunday in competing for the titles of those communities.

The tourney, co-sponsored by Associated Newspapers and the Parks and Recreation Department of the participating cities, is designed to pick the top five golfers from those communities and send them to the Michigan Parks and Recreation state finals later this year.

Hawley said that because of the later tee off time this year (11 a.m.), foursomes will be sent simultaneously off the front and back nines at the same times.

"Tom Ross, Fellows Creek manager, has assured us that the fairways will be cut and said the course will be in excellent condition for this year's championship tournament," Hawley said. Hawley said USGA rules will govern the tourney except in the case of one or two exceptions. Each golfer will be handed a list of rules before teeing off Saturday. Hawley will be assisted by Bill Whitworth, who has helped run the 5-city tourney for several years.

Fellows Creek is a 6,210 yard, par 72 lay-out where golfers are confronted with a creek on holes 1,2,3 and 9 on the front side and must keep their shots straight on the heavily wooded back nine.

Most who have played the course rate the 220-yard, par 3 10th hole as the toughest par. Flanked by a fence along the left side and a meandering creek on the right edge, the fairway slants sharply from left to right and most drives bounce toward the creek and many disappear beneath its murky waters.

Some players openly admit they try to hit their drive a little short and have it land on the flat surface a few yards in front of the green. Then they try to chip close to the pin and sink their putt for the par.

Long hitters will do well for the most part but will have rough to contend with if they stray off the fairway. Many feel the 405-yard, par 4 second hole is almost as tough to par as the 10th. Making the second hole tough is the fact that the large, rolling green is tucked in behind a big, leafy tree which partially hides it and the golfer's second shot must clear the ever-present creek which crosses the fairway about 40 yards in front of the green.

The 5-city golf tourney is guaranteed of having a new champion this year. Russ Holden of Westland, the college All-American who won it last year, and Tom Piscopink of Wayne, who captured the title in 1977, 1978 and 1979, are not able to play this year.

Tee times are listed in today's sports section and players are urged to be at the course plenty early on Saturday and Sunday.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers in each of the flights. In case of a tie for one of the trophy berths, a "sudden death" playoff will be staged to determine the eventual winner. Last year, no less than five flight championships were decided by "sudden death" play.

There will be a special trophy for the medalist (low scorer) of the entire tournament. Also, the medalist for the Wayne Championship flight will be awarded the Lenny Anderson Memorial Traveling Trophy. Patrolman Anderson was the first officer in the history of the Wayne Police Department to be killed in the line of duty.

It should be noted that although people who work in a city may represent that city in this tournament, only bona fide residents will be permitted to represent their city in the Michigan Parks and Recreation state tournament. Also, there will be no refunds after the first round of competition.

In case of rain this weekend, the City Golf Tournament will beconcluded the following weekend.

Golfers are a different breed

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Golfers are a breed apart...

Drug addiction is no worse than getting "hung up" on that tiny white pill called a golf ball. Starting out is innocent enough when a friend casually asks you to visit the golf course and play a round of 18 holes. But little do you realize the dangers involved in such a venture.

These thoughts filled my mind this week as I contemplated the 22nd annual City Golf Championship at Fellows Creek Golf Course this Saturday and Sunday. This annual "search and destroy" mission over the undulating hills on Lotz Road reunites "the good, the bad and the ugly" of the local golfing elite. (You'll have to decide which is which).

It's a fun time and the majority of the more than 100 entries do it for the fun and socializing of the event. It made me think how I have tried in vain over the years to make that pock-marked ball disappear into a microscopic hole.

However, I'm greatly hindered. Not once have I sworn after dubbing a shot, broke my club upon blowing a 12-inch putt or tossed my clubs in a water hole. A Christian is supposed to refrain from the weaknesses of other mortals, they say.

Oh, I may come out with, "You dummy, Jim, you didn't hit that one very well!" or after parring two holes in a row and missing a pressure-packed two-footer for a par, perhaps I've said, "Oh well, it's only a game." (Don't you believe it. It's not just a game — it's an addiction).

Sometimes I'll say, "C'mon Jim, what's the matter with you?" after one of my numerous slices into the woods. (I carry a hatchet as my 15th club).

After going "cold turkey" for a few years, I basked in the freedom of release from the "drug" of touring the links. Then a newspaper editor friend of mine casually mentioned that he knew where I could pick up a cheap set of golf clubs for 50 bucks.

"You know, just to play an occasional game," he said.

Little did I know he was a junkie in disguise. Once at the golf course, I was hypnotized by a beautiful set of woods and irons with a high price tag. "If you're going to play, you might as well have a decent set," the golf pro teased.

I felt the urge of addiction rear its ugly head. A cold sweat broke out on my forehead and I knew I should leave the clubhouse immediately. However, before I could depart, the pro handed me an attractive driver and said, "Take a swing with this beauty." The beautifully balanced club swept downward in a smooth arc. Too late — I was hooked!

I found out immediately the favorite phrase of all golfers. "That won't hurt you!" is what they say everytime you hit the ball. "That won't hurt you," my friend yelled at me after I sliced my drive into the edge of the woods. As I hung from a limb by one leg, held back the branch with my left hand and hit the ball with my right arm, I wondered what constituted a shot that would hurt you.

The dry spring had caused the fairways to bake like cement. I wondered why this certain golf course was called "Mortar Meadows." That's where they held the "Concrete Open." I practiced chipping on my cement driveway in preparation for the event. The only reason for sand traps and water holes on that course was to mix mortar to replace divots. The divots looked like miniature manhole covers. You had to carry a trowel as an extra club to replace the divots.

The golf professional gave me instructions on the first tee. I teed up my ball, kept my left arm straight, head down, even stance and followed through beautifully with my driver. I was very pleased with my swing until the pro cracked, "Nice swing, Jim, the ball should really go if you hit it this time."

After numerous frustrating rounds of dubbing, hacking, slicing, hooking, shanking, missing, cutting and losing golf balls, I was so dejected I told my wife I was going to quit golf. I had matured quickly to realize I'd never be a golfer. My golf clubs barely slid between the storm windows and the snow shovel on the garage rafters.

A small ad in the weekly newspaper should sell that bag of deceivers, I thought.

Late that night as I prepared for bed the phone rang. "Oh hello, Uncle Hiram. Yes, this is Jim. Hey, sounds great! I'll meet you on the first tee at 6:30 in the morning.

I had barely hung up the phone when a well-aimed pillow came hurtling from our bedroom and plunked me in the face. My wife clicked the lock shut on our bedroom door.

As I curled up to spend the night on the couch, I could only wonder if anyone has ever found a cure for the golfing bug.

Unbeaten champs

For the second consecutive year, the Romulus South Senior circuit baseball title went to the Brewers, a team sponsored by Daly-Drive In. The Brewers compiled a 24-0 record and remained undefeated going into post-season competition. Members of the team include: Gordon McVicar (front row, from left), Ben

Cherished victory

Romulus' All-Stars claim their first district crown

It was a first for the Romulus South Major League All-Stars, and they enjoyed every minute of it.

The All-Stars claimed their first district championship in World Series competition which was staged last week.

The title game matched Brownstown All-Stars against Romulus South and South gained a hard-fought and well played 6-5 victory.

Great defense marked all three games, and during the title game. South turned in double plays which helped sew up the victories.

The first victory was a 4-2 decision over Lincoln Park. Pitcher Bobby Stratton proved very stingy, giving up just three hits. Mark Dwyak and Brian Johnson hit run-scoring singles and doubles, respectively while Scotty Hampton and Jeff Bird also hit well.

The south team took a fast 3-0 lead, which proved enough for the victory.

A stubborn Detroit Southeast team fell in the second contest 7-5 on Friday. Mark Dwyak picked up the pitching victory Romulus South jumped off to a big first inning lead, 4-0 with key hits by Dwyak and Joe Schuster picking up doubles, Hampton, a triple, and singles by Nathan Zabik, Brian Johnson and Stratton.

The championship game saw Darrel Lawrence and Bobby Stratton pitch for South, in a topsy-turvy game. Brownstown loaded the bases with no outs, but Lawrence got a strike out, and an outstanding double play erased the threat.

Romulus came back to take a 2-0 lead, which didn't stand long, as Brownstown tied it up.

After receiving word, the South Team went on to take a 4-2 lead until the top of the sixth inning when a three run homer put Brownstown ahead. But the fired-up Romulus team tied the score with two outs on a triple by Brian Johnson, who eventually stole home to score the winning run on a pass ball.

Lawrence, Bird and Hampton each had two hits for the game, with Zabik, Stratton, Schuster & Kemp all getting hits in the winning cause.

The Major League all-Stars will travel from the Taylor District to the Lincoln Park Districts, scheduled to start on Wed, July 22.

Kids get their kicks out of soccer

Registration is now being accepted for the Van Buren fall soccer league. Players may sign up between noon and 4 p.m., Saturday, July 25 at the Van Buren Township Hall.

Van Buren's soccer program presently has 13 teams registered for competition and Ed Dubin, association president, attributes the success of soccer and its popularity "to some very devoted parents who are out there promoting, organizing and supporting the programs.

"Soccer is coming on strong because of a lot of things, including the cost factor," pointed out Dubin. "It is relatively cheaper to suit up kids for this sport than any of the others. We now have some 200 kids playing in this sport locally."

Van Buren soccer is open to all boys and girls from ages 5 to 19 who are Van Buren Township residents, or who attend Van Buren Public Schools.

For further information about registration, please contact a club member or telephone 699-2001.

This Little Piggy Went to the No. 1 Marketplace —

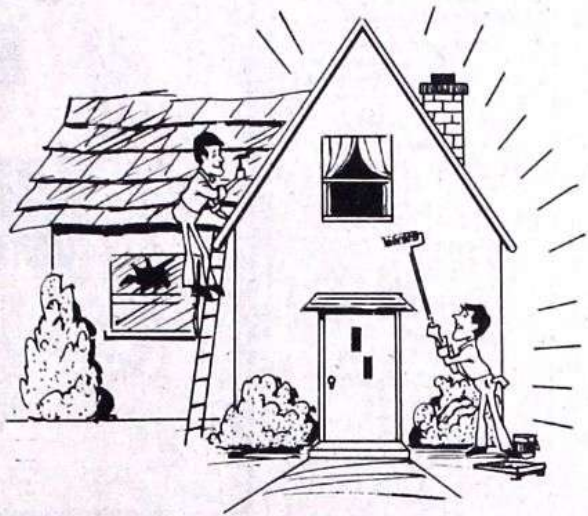

Classified, Of Course.

Take it from this little pig. He knew just the right place to shop for bargains in merchandise or services. And by selling his older-but-no-longer-usable items in Classified, he found the perfect way to bring home the extra cash. "What an easy way to bring home the bacon!" he cried.
